Eagle or Guinea Pig?
King George Needs It
Not Exactly Nordic
Idzikowski and Kubala

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

AMERICANS have fared badly in the Olympic games and Will Rogers says they do too much automobile riding and are forgetting how to [illegible].

If that were true, what of it? An aviator on the ground cannot run as well as a sprinter or even a guinea pig. But he would rather be an eagle.

• • •

KING GEORGE, delighted with the Kellogg peace proposal, says, proposing Parliament, "My government has been happy to accept the proposed [illegible]."

England needs that treaty more than we need it.

Britain's empire is scattered all over the earth; ours is a concentrated country, with only the Philippines detached. If those fellows at the Washington conference had not agreed to leave Guam unfortified the Philippines would be safe. Guam ought to be the greatest spot for love in the world, and would be if Britain owned it.

RAY BARBUTI of Syracuse University won the 400-meter race at the Olympic stadium yesterday, first track victory for American this year.

Barbuti, the best the world had to offer, in a splendid exhibition of courage, finished, diving through the tape, won by a splash.

When he picked himself up from the cinders his chest was bleeding, but that did not worry him.

Those forever singing praises of "Nordic superiority" will note that Barbuti is not exactly a Nordic name.

NEW YORK hopes soon to welcome Polish fliers westward-bound across the ocean. Military landing fields from Maine to Florida have been ordered to look out for them. Their ship, the "Marszalek Pilsudski," brings two of Poland's military air service pilots, Louis Idzikowski and Casimir Kubala. Those good Polish names take you back to days when fighting Poniatowski jumped from his horse from a cliff into the river in his eagerness to get at the enemy.

SCIENTISTS tell automobile manufacturers they could save for automobile owners hundreds of millions of gallons per year by building cars with greater compression. That will come as the price of gasoline goes up. Just now it is, "How much does the car cost?" Later it will be, "How much does the gas cost?"

• • •

DR. HARRIS, health commissioner of New York, asks automobile makers to put the exhaust at the top of the car, that the poisonous gases may float up above the crowd, instead of rising from the ground to be inhaled by the population.

To let poison from automobile exhaust pipes start above the car roof, above the heads of children in the streets, would be a good idea. It wouldn't cost much to bend the exhaust pipe up over the back of the car.

OHIO I. O. O. F. HEAD TO BE HERE AUG. 27

Will Have Part in District Meeting To Be Held at Garfield Park

Grand Master J. M. Gledhill of the Grand I. O. O. F. lodge of Ohio will make his first official visit to Marion on Monday, Aug. 27, according to an announcement by members of the local I. O. O. F. lodge today.

The occasion for the visit of the grand master will be a meeting of district 31. One of the features of the day will be a picnic at Garfield Park in the afternoon. The night's program will be held in the Chautauqua pavilion.

The program for the meeting is now being worked out by Odd Fellows here.

A meeting of 18 district representatives included in the northwest Ohio district No. 1 held at Bowling Green Thursday afternoon and night, was attended by T. E. Bolander, of Marion, representative of district 31. Grand Master Gledhill was present.

A parade consisting of more than 300 Odd Fellows, Rebekahs and women's auxiliary members featured the evening's ceremonies.

HIT-SKIP ACCIDENT FORCES LEG AMPUTATION

Newark, Aug. 4—Sam Arnold, Zanesville, salesman, is in a Newark hospital today suffering from the amputation of his left leg above the knee. Arnold was reported to be on his way home from here last night when he stopped on the highway three miles south of here, got out of the car and was struck by a hit-skip motorist.

His left leg was so badly mangled that amputation was necessary this morning.

VICTIMS OF LIGHTNING

Lebanon, Aug. 4—Funeral arrangements were made today for Ethel Moore, 27 and Robert Cole, 21, both of South Lebanon, who were killed by lightning. They were picking blackberries when a heavy storm broke over this vicinity. Other berry pickers found their bodies after the rain had stopped.

CANDIDATES AT FEVER HEAT AS PRIMARY NEARS

Aug. 14 To Mark End of One of Buckeye State's Warmest Campaigns

CHARGES ARE HURLED

Anti-Saloon League in Controversy as Result of Endorsements

Columbus, Aug. 4—With Ohio's statewide primary election only 10 days away, activities among political candidates and their supporters were at the fever-heat stage today.

Charges and counter-charges, affecting the aspirations of various candidates for state and local offices, aided materially in the warming up process.

Indications are that the closing of the polls Tuesday night, Aug. 14, will mark the termination of one of the most fervid primary campaigns in the history of the Buckeye state.

Exceptions to the action of Dr E. J. Moore, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league, in issuing a "sample" ballot endorsing the candidacy of Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, and the candidacies of other aspirants for state offices featured developments in Ohio political circles this week.

Take Exception

C. L. Dickey, Columbus, treasurer of the Ohio Anti-Salon league, Lester D. Hill, Bowling Green; and E. R. Root, Medina, and Norman C. Sherwood, Fremont, prominent members of the league, were publicly credited with being among the active supporters of Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, also seeking the G. O. P. gubernatorial nomiantion, who took vigorous exception to the issuance of the so-called Anti-Saloon league sample" ballot.

Friends of Begg declared that the league's policy committee, at a session here some days ago, accorded equal endorsement to Begg and Cooper, because of their satisfactory dry records. The claim was made that issuance of the "sample" ballot was in violation of the instructions of the policy committee.

Suggests Amendments

Considerable dissatisfaction, also, was registered by a number of candidates who were not endorsed on the "white" list issued this week by officials of the Ohio W. C. T. U. of the gubernatorial candidates. This list gave its O K to Begg, Cooper and Shanley, Republicans, and to Davey and Bloom, Democrats.

Attorney Graham P. Hunt, Cincinnati, a Democratic candidate for one of the U. S. senatorial nominations, was among the candidates who declared they did not receive a copy of the W. C. T. U. questionnaire. Officials of the organization replied that copies were mailed to all candidates.

Attorny General Edward C. Turner, a candidate for the G. O. P. gubernatorial nomination, in a letter addressed to Congressman Theodore E. Burton, Cleveland, this week, urged amendments to Ohio's corrupt practices' act. One proposed amendment, suggested by Turner, was that candidates for the United States senate not be allowed to spend more than $5,000 in a campaign. This law now limits campaign expenditures of a gubernatorial candidate to $5,000, but places no limitation upon U. S. senatorial candidates, Turner said.

Approves Petitions

Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, it was announced this week, approved the form of initiative petitions, submitted by Attorney Charles H. Hubbell, Cleveland, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state auditor. These petitions, it is stated, will be circulated among Ohio voters preparatory to the proposed adoption of a state constitutional amendment and enactment of legislation repealing the Pence law, regulating public utilities, and lengthening the terms of all elective officials in the Buckeye state, from

MOORE TO MAKE DEFENSE OF LIST

Columbus, Aug. 4—E. J. Moore, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league, has prepared a statement in defense of the "white list" of candidates having the league's approval in the impending state primary election, it was learned this afternoon.

Moore intends to release the statement tonight for publication tomorrow.

VARE IMPROVED

Physician Declares Senator-elect Is No Means Out of Danger

Atalantic City, N. J., Aug. 4—The condition of Senator-elect William S. Vare, 60, of Philadelphia, was somewhat improved today, according to his personal physician, Dr. Ellwood Kirby of Philadelphia. Vare, stricken earlier in the week by a paralytic stroke, had suffered an alarming relapse late yesterday when he was unconscious.

A bulletin issued shortly after midnight stated that the patient was resting comfortably and felt better than at any time since he was stricken, but that he is a very sick man and by no means out of danger.

Survivor of Sandusky Bay Tragedy in Which Pastor Died Tells of Song and Prayer Service Held as Three Battle For Lives in Water

Dramatic Scene Enacted by Ministers as Menace of Death Faces Them

THE story of a song and prayer service conducted by three ministers who believed it might be their last act of devotion to their Creator, was revealed today as a dramatic feature of the tragic event in which the late Rev. Frank P. George, pastor of Herman Street Community church, met his death by drowning Tuesday night in Sandusky bay.

The account was given by the Rev. George Reep, of Green Springs, a companion of the Rev. Mr. George when their motor boat overturned, sending the Marion minister to his death.

The Rev. Mr. Reep was in Marion today for the purpose of attending short funeral rites for the Rev. Mr. George preceding his burial this afternoon in the cemetery at Basil, O.

The body was brought to the W. C. Boyd funeral home here last night after being recovered by a tug crew near the new Sandusky bay bridge early yesterday afternoon. It was taken to Basil for burial today, accompanied by 12 machine-loads of Marion men and women.

While no funeral services were held here, friends of the late Rev. Mr. George and members of his church, will gather for a memorial service in his honor at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Community church, Herman st.

Account of Tragedy

While gripping their capsized boat and with all their concentrated physical strength, the three men held what they believed to be their last earthly communication with God, Rev. Mr. Reep said.

They prayed for divine aid and sang the songs of praise they had sung so many times during quiet morning and evening services in their own churches. With the

POLISH FLIERS REPORTED SEEN BY 2 VESSELS

Ship Radios Pair Appeared To Have Lost Bearings Over Mid-Ocean

SWEEP IN WIDE CIRCLES

Give No Signs They Need Assistance, Fly Towards North

London, Aug. 4—Indications that the Polish transatlantic fliers, Maj. Louis Idzikowski and Maj. Casimir Kubala, had lost their bearings and were sweeping in wide circles over mid-ocean in efforts to find their route, were contained in a radiogram received this afternoon from the steamship Amakura.

The Amakura reported sighting the plane at 5 o'clock this morning, G. M. T. in the position of 46.20 north and 20.40 west.

An earlier report, received by wireless from the Norwegian steamer Astee at 2:40 o'clock, Greenwich mean time, put the location of the Polish plane at 44.22 north and 21.08 west. Comparison of the two locations showed that the plane had traveled eastward instead of westward as it had last approximately four degrees.

The plane approached the steamship Amakura from the west, circled the vessel and then disappeared towards the north flying very rapidly.

The silver gray biplane was about 500 feet in the air when it appeared in the early morning haze over the ocean. The fliers evidently sought to learn the name of the steamship to aid them get their bearings but they made no signal, indicating that they were not in need of assistance of any kind.

• • •

Unless held up by bad weather or mechanical trouble, the Polish flyers, Maj. Louis Idzikowski and Maj. Casimir Kubala, were believed to be nearing the American coast today. At 9 o'clock, Marion time, the men had been on their way 33 hours and had been reported over the mid-atlantic flying strongly.

The Norwegian steamship Aztec reported at 2:40 a. m. Greenwich mean time, that it had sighted a white biplane in 44.22 north and 24.08 west. The plane was flying westward at high speed, but its exact destination could not be determined. It was about 200 miles nort of The Azores and it could not be told whether it was headed for Bermuda, New York or the Newfoundland coast.

The message from the Aztec was picked up by the wireless station at Valentia, on the west coast of Ireland.

Half Way Across

The position given by the steamship was approximately 250 miles northwest of The Azores and nearly one-half across the Atlantic, figuring in a straight line from the continent to the American coast line.

It was impossible to tell from the position of the Polish plane whether the Polish fliers were bearing for Canada or Bermuda. When they left Le Bourget field, Paris, they said they planned to fly by way of Bermuda and stop there for fuel in the event it was necessary.

From the position of the biplane, as reported by the Aztec, it would appear that the fliers decided to fly north of the Azores instead of steering a course over the islands. The airmen were about 1,200 miles at sea, flying south of the North Atlantic steamer lane but across the route of the steamships that ply into ports on the southern United States.

Time Up This Afternoon

The indications were that the Polish fliers were jogging along as nonchalantly as when they hopped off saying they did not know where they were going but that they hoped to land in New York within 40 hours. The 40 hours will not be up until this evening, giving the Poles plenty of time to make good unless they run into storms or their machine develops mechanical trouble.

The plane had hopped off at Le Bourget field, near Paris, at 2:35 o'clock yesterday morning (11:35 p. m. Marion time), and had been reported over the mid-Atlantic flying strongly.

NEW HIGH MARK IS REACHED BY MERCURY HERE

Yesterday's Record of 92 Degrees Establishes Peak Temperature for Year

All heat records for the year were broken here when the mercury soared to 92 degrees early yesterday afternoon. This was one degree above the season's previous high mark. With the mercury at 86 degrees at 11 o'clock this morning, the temperature today was expected to exceed even yesterday's figure before sundown.

Practically all sections of Ohio as well as other states reported record temperatures yesterday. The blistering heat in New York city took a toll of six lives in 24 hours while in Cleveland, three deaths resulted from heat prostrations in the same length of time. New England's toll in the heat wave, according to reports from Boston, stood at five dead and scores prostrated.

Warm in Mt. Gilead

While Marionites sweltered in a temperature of 92 degrees yesterday, residents of Mt. Gilead were plunged into a heat wave during which the mercury reached the 93-degree mark. One thermometer showed 97 degrees.

The heat wave in Kenton was blamed for the illness of Mrs. John Collier, 73, reported recovering from a minor heat stroke today. She was stricken while at work at her home in Kenton yesterday.

The only heat victim recorded here this week, R. R. Dumm, 355 Pearl st., was reported improved at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Fulk, 490 Blaine av., today. Mr. Dumm was prostrated from the heat yesterday morning on the rear porch of his home.

Relief Promised

Relief for the intense heat gripping the city is promised in the "slightly cooler" weather predicted for Sunday. The weather forecast also predicts

CHARGES DISMISSED AS RESULT OF NOTE

Trial Judge Receives Communication Demanding Convictions at Lebanon

Lebanon, Aug. 4—Cases of seven alleged bootleggers have been dismissed by Judge Charles C. White, Batavia, sitting by appointment on the Warren county common pleas bench, at the request of the prosecutor because of a note received by the trial judge from W. C. T. U. informing him that "convictions are expected," it was revealed here today.

According to Prosecutor C. D. Dilatush, he requested the dismissal after he saw the note which Judge White had received. The note read: "We are here and convictions are expected." The note was signed by "Mrs. Harshbarger, President of the W. C. T. U." Prosecutor Dilatush said, "and the note had been handed Judge White by a court bailiff, so under the circumstances I could do nothing other than ask the dismissal."

Judge White told him, Prosecutor Dilatush said, that "never in all my years on the bench have I ever encountered anything similar." Dilatush believes the only reason there were not contempt proceedings was because Judge White was a foreign magistrate and did not wish to create a scene.

FORD COMPANY INQUIRES ABOUT LOCAL AIRPORT

Questionnaire Seeks Information Regarding Landing Facilities

The Ford Motor Co. has requested Ed C. Watters, local Ford dealer, to supply it with information concerning Marion's airport facilities. A four-page questionnaire has been received by Mr. Watters in which more than 50 questions are asked concerning local facilities for landing and caring for visiting planes.

Mr. Watters however, will be able to answer only one questionnaire. It is: "What efforts are being made to provide your city with a landing field?"

Getting All Details

That the Ford Motor Co. makes careful plans for the safety of its airplanes and pilots before sending them on a flight is indicated by the type of questions asked in the questionnaire. Information concerning the size and location of the field, the direction of the runways and the prevailing wind directions, location of any obstructions that might hinder landing or taking off, are a few of the questions asked.

The Ford Motor Co. is only one of a number of concerns which have sought information concerning accommodations for airplanes here in recent weeks.

Present appearances indicate that considerable air traffic is being kept away from Marion because the city has no airport.

Near Mail Route

It has been prophesied by backers of the airport movement that Marion might be placed on the newly established air mail route from Cleveland to Cincinnati if it were possible for mail planes to land here. Marion is on the route of the air mail, as the planes pass just a short distance east of the city.

THREATEN OFFICERS WHO MAKE ARRESTS

National Civil Liberties Union Calls Off "Protest Parade"

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 4—Calling off the proposed "protest parade," scheduled for this afternoon as a protest against the wholesale arrest of textile strike pickets, the National Civil Libertirs union stepped into the industrial wage dispute picture here today with the announcement that criminal and civil action will be taken in the courts against police officers who commit an assault on pickets or who make an unlawful arrest.

The decision of District Judge Frank Milliken that only single pickets could be at each of the gates of the 56 mill units was declared by Roger Baldwin, of the liberties union, to be "outside the function of his office," "picketing," he said, "is not a crime in Massachusetts and Judge Milliken cannot make it so."

FARM GROUP WANTS FEE ENDORSEMENT

Neither Hoover Nor Smith Meets Present Official View of Federation

Washington, Aug. 4—Neither Gov. Alfred E. Smith nor Herbert Hoover will meet the present official view of the American Farm Bureau federation, the largest farm organizations, unless they flatfootedly endorse the equalization fee plan of the McNary-Haugen bill or suggest a better method, it was declared here today.

This appeared to be the situation after Chester H. Gray, legislative representative of the farm bureau and chief spokesmen before congressional committees for the McNary-Haugen bill, outlined for International News Service the bureau's position.

The excise tax scheme to replace the equalization fee—which was suggested as a possible method by Democratic National Chairman John J. Raskob—has been considered and rejected, Gray said.

The Farm Bureau federation, he explained, has always taken the position that it would alter its view when a more effective farm remedy than the equalization fee plan is submitted. Many counter-proposals have been rejected.

The excise tax and government loans to cooperative organizations in such manner that the individual farmer belonging to the cooperative would have an advantage over the non-member, have been rejected. They are more subject to the charge of unconstitutionality than the equalization fee, he said.

Hoover Outlines Plans For Acceptance Speech Next Saturday

UNIVERSITY STADIUM TO CARE FOR 105,000

Nominee Will Speak into Bowl with Committee Behind Him

SPEECH IS READY

Copies Given in Confidence to Newspapermen; Ask Clubs Pay Hookup

Stanford University, Cal., Aug. 4—A new form of campaign contribution will be brought to light through the use of the radio to broadcast the speech of Herbert Hoover accepting the Republican presidential nomination, it was learned today.

Local Republican organizations in various sections of the country will be asked by national leaders to pay the cost of hooking up their local radio stations to the National Broadcasting system, employed to broadcast Hoover's speech across the country on Aug. 11. A tremendous hook-up of stations probably the greatest in history, will send the speech out into the ether, but hundreds of smaller stations will be left out of the chain unless local organizations foot the bills.

This form of contribution will be similar to the action of political clubs in paying the cost of newspaper space to advertise their favorite candidates. The adaptation of this practice however, will put something new into American politics.

Room for 60,000 Cars

Hoover will deliver his acceptance speech in Stanford university stadium, a huge stucco bowl, built some years ago to accommodate the tremendous crowds attending the university's football games. The stadium will seat 85,000 persons, but there will be standing room for 20,000 more. A monster crowd has been anticipated because the stadium is available to motorists from all over California and has facilities to park 60,000 automobiles.

The nominee will speak from a stand built across one end of the field. He will face the bowl with only the Republican national notification committee and a number of personal friends seated behind him.

Hoover had his speech completed today and gave out copies in confidence to the newspapermen assigned to him. They were under a pledge not to reveal its contents before he begins speaking next Saturday afternoon. The prepared program fixed the time of his address at 4 o'clock. The speech will run more than 5,000 words and Hoover expects to complete it within the 40 minutes assigned to him on the radio.

To Attend Frolic

The candidate spent this morning quietly at his home, free from callers and attempting to catch up on the correspondence that piled up during his fishing trip to the north woods. He was to leave his home late this afternoon for a motor ride to the Bohemian club's frolic tonight at Bohemian grove, 75 miles north of San Francisco. He will remain at the camp overnight, as he has been a member of the club for many years.

The frolic, although a stag affair, is the greatest social event of the west coast. There is a limited guest list and the fortunate ones come from all over the country to attend the event, called "High Jinks." Associate Supreme Court Judge Harlan F. Stone, Secretary of War Dwight Davis and Assistant Attorney General William J. Donovan, will attend along with Hoover.

COUNTY TREASURER

In presenting my candidacy for County Treasurer for your personal and candid judgment I desire to state that I was born and have always lived in Marion County and have never been an applicant for a public office. I have attended school at the Ohio Northern University at Ada, Ohio, also at the Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, and was a teacher in the county schools; later was an extensive buyer and shipper of horses to the eastern markets, and for the last ten years have been in an Erie Railroad office.

Trusting that you will give my candidacy your careful and candid consideration by investigating my qualifications, character and integrity, and thanking you in advance for anything that you may be able to do in my behalf.

Strict economy should be used in spending public funds as farmers and merchants have a hard time raising funds with which to pay taxes.

Marion county receives $330,000 from the two mill levy for road repairs and maintenance, gasoline tax, and auto tag licenses. Quite a sum. This money is not for new roads, but repair and maintenance of roads already built.

Let's get some action for our money.

Appeal For Koon, Convicted Slayer, To Be Filed Within Few Days, Attorney Says

Preparations Are Made for Fight To Save Prisoner from Electric Chair; Stay of Execution Likely Unless Court Advances Date for Hearing Appeal

The fight to save Everett Koon, alias Cecil Dean, convicted slayer of Henry Koon, aged Marion county farmer, will be carried to the district court of appeals at Lima within a few days, Homer E. Johnson, attorney for Koon, said today.

Johnson is carrying the case to the appellate court on errors which he claims exist in the records of the trial, in which Koon was convicted of murder while perpetrating a robbery, in the common pleas court here. The success of the appeal will depend on whether there is error in the lower court records.

Found No Error

In overruling Attorney Johnson's motion for a new trial several weeks ago, Judge George B. Scofield stated that the trial records were without error.

The defendant in a criminal case is allowed 120 days in which to file a petition for an appeal on error. Koon was convicted July 11. Attorney Johnson, however, does not expect to take advantage of the 120-day limit, he stated today.

Although Koon is sentenced to die in the electric chair at the Ohio penitentiary on the morning of Nov. 5, he will probably be granted a stay of execution, pending the outcome of the appeal. It is possible, however, Attorney Johnson said today, that the appellate court may set the hearing ahead of other cases on the docket in order that it may be disposed of before the date set for execution.

May Go On Schedule

If the case is set ahead and the lower court is sustained, Koon will probably be executed on the date set by Judge Scofield "sometime between midnight and sunrise on the morning of Nov. 5".

Transcripts of the common pleas court record have been prepared by the court stenographer, Robert Hedges, and will be forwarded to the court of appeals when the petition for appeal is filed in common pleas court. Ten days are allowed the prosecuting attorney to study the petition after it has been filed here before it is forwarded to the higher court.

COURTNEY PRAISES SUNG BY ENGLAND

Coolness and Daring in Safely Landing Blazing Plane Cited

London, Aug. 4—All England was today singing the praises of Capt. Frank T. Courtney for his coolness and daring in safely landing his blazing seaplane in mid-ocean and saving the lives of his taree companions and himself.

Despite the fact that he failed in his flight, Courtney is being hailed as having advanced transatlantic flying another step by proving the worth of the all-metal seaplane and wireless under the most hazardous conditions.

It is pointed out that a land plane of ordinary construction would either have burned up in the air or dropped plummet-like to the bottom of the sea under conditions similar to these met by Courtney.

Courtney and his three companions, E. B. Hosmer, wealthy Canadian backer of the flight, Fred Pierce, mechanic, and E. W. Gilmour, radio operator, are now aboard the liner Minnewaska which will arrive in New York Monday morning.

MODERN FUNERAL HOME FULLY EQUIPPED

Above is pictured the funeral home of C. E. Curtis & Co., 267 East Center st., together with three of the motor cars which form a part of the equipment used by this firm in its service to the public. The funeral home is ideally located and arranged and the company is provided with every facility required for the most efficient service.

LOCAL FIRM HAS BEST OF FACILITIES

Funeral Home on East Center st. Is Admirably Arranged and Furnished

LOCATION IDEAL

Modern Equipment Enables C. E. Curtis & Co. To Carry Out High Standard of Policies

C. E. Curtis & Co., funeral directors, whose funeral home is located at 267 E. Center st., are well known to Marion and Marion county residents for their many years of successful service.

Their funeral home is very centrally located so as to be of most convenience to the majority of their patrons, yet far enough away from the "hub and drub" of city noises and traffic to give it that quiet dignity and reserve which is such a necessary part of the modern funeral home.

Includes Chapel

Connected with the funeral home for the convenience of the public is a beautiful little funeral chapel, which will comportably seat approximately 125 persons. This chapel is decorated in brown with attractive rugs, drapes and wicker furniture to match, all of which, blended together, makes for the simple and unextravagant beauty which the funeral occasion calls for.

In the front of the chapel are placed beautiful torcheres on either side of a small raised platform. Off to one side of the room a small organ is placed for use whenever music is a part of the service. Next to and adjoining this chapel is a private family room where the family and relatives of the deceased may sit in private yet at the same time be able to hear all the service being conducted in the chapel.

Motor Equipment

In the accompanying picture are shown three of the Curtis service cars. For the family cars they have two of Lincoln make, which are at the publics service whenever needed. The hearse and ambulance are of Sayers-Scoville Co. make, which are considered among the finest in the world. The Sayers-Scoville Co. is located in Chicago, and its business is to make exclusively funeral and ambulance cars.

Funeral occasions come into all our lives. They are inevitable and when they come correct respect for the one departed calls for the very best consideration and attention. The mortician practicing properly today is equipped to furnish that high quality of funeral service without charging exhorbitant prices. You will find that the C. E. Curtis & Co. "service" is not measured by gold, but by the "golden rule," so that it is no longer necessary to resort to mediocre (funeral) conditions for any reasons.

Prompt Service

When one calls the Curtis home he can be assured of an immediate response, a service which is available every hour of the 24. Since there is no way of determining when the necessity will arise, this is an important consideration.

It is gratifying to note the expressions of confidence and good will bestowed upon this organization for its fairness, courtesy and dignity.

THE TRUE TEST OF SYMPATHY

THE true test of sympathy and understanding is in works not words. In the case of a mortician it is in the bill he renders.

The conscientious mortician takes into consideration the fact that every family wants to do the utmost by a departed one and yet not burden itself financially.

When C. E. Curtis is called in, the bereaved family knows in advance that the final arrangements will be all they could ask for and yet reasonable in cost.

LOCAL BANK TOTALS HOLD HIGH AVERAGE

Run Above $100,000 Daily During Week, Indicating Healthful Business Conditions

Bank clearings here for the week, while showing a daily average of more than $100,000 fell more than $200,000 below last week. A record figure of $290,213.74 on Thursday of last week brought the total of the week to $879,331.71 compared to $628,326.42 this week.

The lowest point reached this week was $73,403.28 on Wednesday, while the highest point was $163,302.42, Thursday. On Tuesday the clearings reached $122,446.07, the only other day of the week when the total reached the $100,000 mark.

Despite falling off in clearings, bankers are optimistic over the business outlook pointing out that clearings averaging more than $100,000 a day is an indication of a healthy business condition.

In fact, buying has not experienced the usual summer slump to such a degree this year as last, bankers say. Bank clearings during the entire summer have held pretty well to the $100,000 a day mark fixed by bankers as an indication of a healthy business. No great gain in clearings is looked for by bankers before the opening of the fall buying season.

HOME-GROWN CORN IS MARKET FEATURE

Arrival of Product from Local Fields Is Main Event in Sales This Week

Arrival of homegrown sweet corn provided practically the only feature of the local markets this week. True to the predictions of dealers, homegrown corn appeared on the market about the middle of the week and the price of 30 cents a dozen which had prevailed for the shipped-in varieties was immediately advanced to 45 cents, where it has held.

Corn was not included in the specials offered by dealers for Saturday shoppers. Prospects for a large crop of sweet corn is very good, dealers say, and a drop in price is looked for by next week.

Other vegetables prices were fairly steady all week with ample supplies of nearly all kinds available. New potatoes held all week at 28 cents for homegrown varieties and from 24 to 30 cents for shipped-in stock. While slightly higher than the shipped-in stock, home-grown varieties are better, dealers say, and are worth more. California head lettuce appeared on the market this week and sold fairly readily at 20 cents a head. Homegrown lettuce has disappeared from the market.

Next week will see the peak of the blackberry season, dealers said today. A price of 25 cents which prevailed early in the week, dropped to 23 and then to 20 cents and the end of week found berries of good quality selling as low as 15 cents.

Georgia peaches have supplied a fairly big demand all week and the end of the week found dealers carrying large supplies selling at from $1.80 to $2.25 a bushel. Watermelons have been plentiful all week, and the end of the week found little change in price. Melons that were selling at 45 cents early in the week were being offered at 43 cents. Lemons held at 45 cents all week although dealers are predicting an advance next week.

PREDICT BIG CROP

San Francisco, Aug. 4—Oregon will have the largest walnut and filbert crop in its history, according to the North Pacific Nut Growers' association. The California almond crop is expected to amount to about 13,000,000 tons, or 35 per cent under the 1927 yield.

FINE GRAPE PROSPECTS

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 4—Pennsylvania will have a large grape crop amounting to more than 6,000 tons and will be aided in meeting western competition by a reduction in freight rates of $3 a ton from western Pennsylvania vineyards.

BEEF SUPPLY SHORT

Detroit, Aug. 2—The present and prospective beef supply is the shortest in the last 10 years, according to J. D. Harper, director of the Livestock Producers' association. He estimates eight years will be required to build up depleted herds.

Competent Business Executive for Governor of Ohio

Candidate for the Republican Nomination for Governor.
Republican Primary Election, August 14, 1928

Myers Y. Cooper was born and raised on a farm in Licking County. He is a resident of Cincinnati, where as a realtor and builder of homes he is known to thousands as "The Home Builder."

He has for many years been President of The Ohio Fair Managers Association, and as such has been the chief factor in introducing education as one of the main features of county fairs. He has a genuine and intelligent interest in farm problems, and has sponsored many laws for the benefit of agriculture. He owns and successfully operates a farm.

He is a Trustee of Lincoln Memorial University, and has for several years been President of The Ohio Council of Churches.

He has for twenty-five years been one of the leading Republicans in Ohio. As the Republican candidate in 1926, he reduced a Democratic majority of approximately 180,000 in 1924, to less than 17,000 in 1926. He is entitled to the nomination this year because of the splendid race he made two years ago.

He is one of the foremost business men of Cincinnati and the Middle West, and is identified with many successful financial and industrial organizations. This successful business experience in private life has qualified him in an unusual degree to handle the people's business.

Clean, able, fearless and honest, Myers Y. Cooper typifies the best in American manhood and ideals, and his friends endorse him as the type of business executive that Ohio needs at this particular time.

Oscar J. Hord is a candidate for the Republican nomination (short term) to succeed the late John Rexroth, having been appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Rexroth. The appointment is until the next general election in November. If nominated and elected he will serve the balance of the term which will be about two years longer.

Experience is regarded as an important qualification for positions of responsibility in private life and should be fully as essential in public work.

B. J. Shelton, candidate for the Republican nomination for County Treasurer, bases his campaign largely upon his record in that office and the fact that his experience places him in position to give the public thoroughly efficient and economical service.

Investigation will show that during his time as treasurer, new methods of tax collection and other details of office management have been introduced, resulting in improved service at minimum cost.

He invites inquiry into his record and solicits support of all Republican voters of the county in the August primary.

Head Injury Not Cause

Physician Replies to Rumors Concerning Retirement of Gene Tunney; Says Champ Had Enough Money To Quit; Brands Story as Bunk

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—Gene Tunney retired from the ring because he had all the money he wanted or needed and for no other reason, Dr. Robert Shea, the retired champion's personal physician, informed the writer today in characterizing as "sheer bunk" the story that Tunney's retirement was prompted by an injury to his head, sustained before the second Dempsey fight. The story declared that Tunney on that occasion had become a temporary victim of amnesia; that this had served as a warning to him and that he stepped down because he feared a repetition might result in the condition becoming permanent.

"Somebody has been taken for a 'ride,'" was the comment of Bernard Gimbel, merchant prince and the retired champion's closest of personal friends. His remark just about summed up the almost universal skepticism with which the story that purported to be the "real reason" for the retirement has been received by Tunney's intimates. The gentleman himself was and is out of town and could not be reached for a statement but those with whom he has lived and communed since winning the title in 1926 were unanimously of the opinion that there was "nothing to it."

DR. SHEA was more specific in his denial, since he felt that, if any one was to discuss Tunney's illnesses, he would be the man to do it.

"I was with Tunney in Speculator when this injury is alleged to have happened," the physician declared. "I had direct charge of his health, as I have had for the last 10 years, and having examined him daily while in camp, I think I can speak with authority when I say that Tunney suffered no ill effect, then or since, from a blow or butt he may have sustained in the training ring or in regular contests. His health, in fact, has been just about perfect for the 10 years I have had him under observation.

"I will not bother dealing with the obvious fact that no medical man could be in daily contact with a friend, who was suffering from amnesia or going about in a daze, without the medical man becoming fully aware of the circumstance. The story says that Tunney confided the fact of his condition only in Eddie Eagan. Do you suppose that, if any injury troubling him, he wouldn't come to the physician who has been both professional and personal advisor for years?

TUNNEY isn't a secretive man. He is rather confident with those he likes and trusts and I think I can claim to be one of those in question. Even if it were possible for him to conceal such a condition from me, and I'm ready to say that this isn't possible, he would have consulted me about it some time in the 12 months interval since the thing is supposed to have happened.

"Why, Tunney tells me just about everything he thinks I would be interested in knowing. He wrote me three weeks before the Heeney fight to say that it would be his last—win, lose or draw. He explained then, as he has explained to me since, that he has made his pile and has had enough of the game. That's the true story and the only story of Tunney's retirement."

The good doctor's say-so may or may not prove to be the final word in the matter. It has the ring of finality, anyhow, and will have to go as such until Mr. Tunney returns to town and gives an account of himself.

STEVE WATTS, of the Dr. N. Sifcitt stables of Marion, won the classified trot yesterday as the Ohio Short Ship race meeting was brought to a close at the fairgrounds' track.

Officials of the Marion Driving Association were very optimistic concerning the outcome of the race meet during the past week. In addition to having fine races on every day of the card, the attendance was exceptionally good. Even better things are promised for next year.

After a week in which nearly 200 horses were stabled at the fairgrounds, the scene of the race meet today presented a deserted appearance. Horses were being moved away in trucks to take part in county fair races and some of the larger meets in New York and on other famous tracks.

The feature of the entire week came Thursday when Grattan Bars, the Canadian sensation of the track this season, lowered the track record to 2:03¼ in an exhibition mile.

The Marion horse finished second in the first heat of its race after breaking at the first turn. However he gave Mazie Brooke a great run on the stretch before being beaten out. He had but little trouble in taking the next two heats. The best time was clocked in the first heat at 2:11¼.

Favorites won all the races with two other horses in the third event, a claiming pace receiving quite a play.

Ida May was driven to victory by Childs in the claiming trot taking two first places. In the third heat Forest Watts took the initial position at the finish. This horse finished second in the other two heats.

Lee Ongreat duplicated the feat winning the claiming pace with wins in straight heats. Chehalis Boy pulled quite a surprise by finishing first in the third heat after making a poor showing in the openers.

CALIFORNIA WOMAN TO BE GIVEN TEST

Midge Gladman Has Earmarks of Ranking Tennis Star

Sea Bright, N. J., Aug. 4—Midge Gladman, the California mite who has all the earmarks of taking rank some day with the really great women players that the Golden state has given to lawn tennis, will be put to the acid test today when she faces the stolid and phlegmatic Helen Jacobs of Santa Barbara in the final round for the women's Sea Bright bowl.

One of the most salutary features of the entire lawn tennis season to date was the fine victory which John Van Ryn, this year's Princeton captain, scored over Wilmer Allison, of Texas, in the men's final of the bowl matches yesterday. Allison, completely exhausted, wilted before Van Ryn's brilliant attack and defaulted after the twentieth game of the fifth set when the score of the set was 10 ace and the match score was 6-8, 6-1, 6-4, 4-6, 10-10.

HEENEY GETS BACK ON PAGE ONE AGAIN

Down Under Plans Fight in London with Phil Scott

New York, Aug. 4—Thomas Heeney has no publicity purveyors, no challenge hurlers or defiance breathers yet in one way or another he manages to grab the headlines. Tunney retires and Heeney is back on the first page again, the hero of a romance. The New Zealander has been drifting toward matrimony for the last six months and he took the final plunge Thursday night.

Much mystery attended the "kayo" landed on Tom by cupid. Modest in all his public contracts, Heeney shrank further from them in what he considers is strictly his own private business. He had been engaged to his present better half, formerly Miss Marion Dunn, for several months, wanted to sign the life contract some time ago but was persuaded to wait until after the big fight.

Tom and his bride are in seclusion and will take a short honeymoon out of the city while his plans for the next few months are formulating.

Heeney had intended to accompany his three brothers back to the old home in New Zealand for a visit to his parents whom he has not seen in four years, but an offer to box Phil Scott, English heavyweight champion, in London next month, may delay his trip to the other side of the world. The brothers leave New York in about 10 days and sail from Vancouver on Aug. 26. If the Scott negotiations fall through Tom and his bride will join the party and the hard rock will not return until late in the fall to enter the new elimination tournament.

ONLY two teams have a ghost of a show in the Commercial league pennant fight after games played last night in which third place aggregations were given defeats.

The Eagles hold position No. 1 among the two while the Shovel A. A. is down in second place. One game separates these two teams.

Four teams are tied for third place with the Eagles leading them by four full games. The Shovels are three full games ahead of these teams.

Contests last night resulted in just half of the season's games being played. During the next several weeks the Commercial league aggregations will be forced to play several times each week in order to catch up with the rest of the loop.

The Eagles survived another tough battle last night when they defeated the Kappas, 5 to 4 in a nine-inning battle. The Eagles tied the score at four all in the fourth when three runs were scored. With no one down in the ninth Lattimore walked and an error in left field on the next play allowed him to score.

The Shovel nine played rings around the Marion Star winning 17 to 5. Nine Star errors helped to keep the winners near the top of the race.

The K. of P. moved up a notch by defeating the Isaly Dairies, 6 to 1. The Kiwanis-Silk Mill combination stepped out in front again last night to defeat the Erie Yardmen, 7 to 1. Baptists forfeited to Erie Clerks.

Monday night's games in Sunday School league No. 2 will be featured by the clash of Lutheran and Epworth Juniors. The contest is scheduled at Central but efforts are being made to have it changed to Lincoln.

RED SOX TRIM CHI

Giants Listed as Leading Nine in National League

BY LES CONKLIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—If the St. Louis Cardinals can subdue New York in their crucial series starting here tomorrow, many experts will be ready to concede the pennant to the Red Birds, for the Giants have demonstrated quite clearly in the past two weeks that they are the best of the other contenders.

While the Cardinals were bowling over the Phillies and Braves and getting an even break in Brooklyn, the Giants fattened their batting average to .294, only three points below Pittsburgh. The Giants, meanwhile took three out of four from Pittsburgh, four out of five from Chicago and two straight from Cincinnati. They clinched second place and stayed within 6½ games of St. Louis by nosing out the Reds yesterday 7 to 5, while small William Sherdel hurled the Cards to a 5 to 1 win over Boston.

Extra Base Hits Feature

Extra base hits by Lindstrom and Hogan have been featuring New York late rallies. Each hit a homer yesterday as the McGrawmen scored six runs in the last two innings.

The Cubs advanced to third place by outslugging Brooklyn, 8 to 5. They knocked Jumbo Elliott in the third inning and scored seven runs.

In the American league Philadelphia's 10-game winning streak was snapped by Cleveland and the Red Sox shattered Chicago's six-game winning spurt. The Mackmen lost a chance to gain on the Yankees, who were whitewashed 8 to 0 by Sam Gray of the St. Louis Browns. Murderers' row has dented the platter in 21 innings and the team's batting average has shrunk to .303. Waite Hoyt, the league's leading pitcher, was Gray's victim.

It was the first time since 1926 that the Browns had won a series from the Yanks.

Connie Mack hurled 18 players into the breach in a desperate effort to beat Cleveland, but five pinch hitters, including Grandpa Ty Cobb, Dibby Tris Speaker and Uncle Eddie Collins, were set down by Hudlin and Shaute.

Big Ed Morris hurled the Red Sox to a 3 to 1 triumph over Chicago. Sam Jones of Washington held Detroit to five hits while the Nats pounced on a 9 to 3 win.

The paralyzed Phils were routed and sent on the field to be slaughtered by the Pirates, again, 14 to 6. Paul Traynor got five of Pittsburgh's 18 hits.

New York, Aug. 4—Stocks of the Chrysler-Dodge motor combination led a prominent forward movement in prices at the beginning of trading in the stock market today. Wall Street heard that many traders and investors were switching from General Motors to Chrysler in anticipation of an enormous growth and expansion of the business of this "third largest" manufacturer of motor cars in this country, in addition to which the Chrysler insiders were confidently adding to the stock holdings.

Speculative enthusiasm was also stimulated by the favorable surveys of domestic business conditions issued at the week-end by Dun's, Bradstreet's and a number of the prominent Wall Street banks. Renewed expansion in general trade is already making itself felt in contrast to the seasonal decline expected at this time in the last three years.

Chrysler common and Dodge preference stocks were finally brought to prime in the speculative markets when both stocks sold above 85 for a new two-point gain. Nash, Studebaker, Packard and other popular motor shares forged ahead in active trading, reaching the highest price levels of the week.

Atlantic Refining at its opening price of 157½ showed a loss of about 12 points from yesterday's high the stock slumping on profit taking after the announcement of the intended four-for-one split up. But buying demand flowed in at the low prices of the day and a prompt recovery was in order. Marland, Sinclair and others of the independent oils sold around the level of Friday's close. General Motors United States Steel and other speculative leaders showed the effects of profit-taking, and a number of the specialists were also similarly sold.

TODAY'S REPORT OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

Chicago, Aug. 4—Ideal corn growing weather with heavy rains reported in the Central West and large arrivals in the cash market brought a sharp break in the September delivery, which since the removal of the July future has been soaring upward on short covering. Corn prices were 1⅝@1¾c lower at the close.

Other grains ruled weak and lower under pressure and all the deliveries of wheat went to new low prices on the crop, closing 1⅝@1¾c lower. Oats were 1¼@1½c off and rye prices registered declines of 1⅛@1⅜c.

Corn Firm Early

Corn prices were firm and even worked slightly higher in the early trading, but the overwhelmingly bearish factors in the news relating to both the old and the new crops which developed later quickly put an end to the short covering which had carried over from the previous two days.

Rains and seasonal temperatures were indicated over practically the entire belt. To this was added the weight of heavier arrivals than expected, with receipts estimated at 160 cars. Then, too, there was the report that late in the session Thursday spot sales of corn had been made at flat prices, without regard for the soaring September delivery.

Fairly general liquidation resulted. Prices faded, easily under the pressure and stop loss orders were encountered on the way down. After prices started to move off, buying power was never aggressive and was mainly on the part of shorts and holders of the privileges.

From the opening gong wheat had a heavy tone and prices eased off fairly consistently throughout the session, with few important rallies. Weakness at Liverpool, which closed ⅛@¾d lower, and continued favorable crop news from the American and Canadian Northwest were the main depressing influences.

These factors led to hedging and short selling, which carried prices into stop-loss liquidation. The new lows on the crop were $1.17⅞ for the September and $1.22 for the December.

There were no actual export sales of wheat reported from the seaboard and advices said that the demand was disappointing. However, a report that Russia had purchased 9,500,000 bu. of wheat in the past fortnight was current. Italy was also credited with having taken 1,000,000 bu of durum. Russia's purchases were said to have been mainly No. 3 northern.

The Liverpool market will be closed today and Monday.

Oats and Rye Easy

Oats and rye were easier, mainly under the influence of the other grains, with trade in both of an uneventful character.

In the cash market wheat prices were also weak and lower, though the trading basis was unchanged to ⅛c higher. Demand was fair and offerings were moderate, with shipping sales totalling 6,000 bu. A total of 2,000 bu was booked to arrive.

Shipping sales of corn were 70,000 bu, but the demand was said to be "not as urgent as looked for." The trading basis for spot sales of the yellow cereal was ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher. Some 10,000 bu were booked to arrive. Primary receipts totaled 850,000 bu, which was fairly high for the season, but considerably lower than a week ago, when the figure was 1,008,000 bu.

Smith's Record as Husband and Father Will Be Issue In Feminine Vote Quest

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Chairman of Advisory Committee, Lays Plans To Organize Women Into Action

New York, Aug. 4 — "Governor Smith's record as a husband and a father," has been selected by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, chairman of the women's advisory committee for the Democratic national campaign, as the big "issue" in the drive for the feminine vote.

"This year I feel sure," Mrs. Roosevelt said, "that if the women of the country will familiarize themselves with Governor Smith's record as a husband and a father, there will be no question in the decisions of the great majority."

Mere man is to have no part whatever in the Democratic drive for the feminine vote. It is to be a drive of, by and for women, guided by women from top to bottom—through an organization completely separated from the general campaign machinery.

Clubs To Be Formed

This unique plan was inaugurated today by Mrs. Roosevelt.

Smith-for-president clubs are to be organized under the auspices of existing women's clubs, community kitchens, church societies, and similar bodies. Three separate bureaus have been established in Mrs. Roosevelt's new headquarters, in the General Motors building here, one floor below the national committee quarters. One will handle the organization of business women's clubs throughout the country, a second, the club women, and a third the unaffiliated home-maker.

"Through these independent local Smith-for-president clubs," Mrs. Roosevelt said, "we shall seek to arouse an intelligent interest among the women voters in the candidates and issues of the campaign.

To Do Own Thinking

"The principal reason for this new form of organization is to give the politically-minded woman in every locality an opportunity to do her own thinking, to permit her to work out the problems of the local campaign. The real reason why women, the homemakers in both city and country are, as a rule, so ineffectual in using their citizenship to further their own interests is because they accept what others tell them rather than reason out issues for themselves."

Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former governor of Wyoming, and vice chairman of the Democratic National committee, will have general supervision of the organization of the clubs throughout the country.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

God in his wisdom has recalled
The boon his love had given;
And though the body moulders here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

VISITS FORMER HOME AFTER HALF CENTURY

Marion Man Finds Only Two Old Friends Still Living in Indiana City

Like Rip Van Winkle of folklore fame, Noah Jones, 223 Franconia av., returned to the home of his young manhood in Mishawaka, Ind. this week, for a visit with the friends and acquaintances he had made there 52 years ago. He found only two of them still alive and making their home in the Indiana City.

Irving's character had nothing on Mr. Jones, in that he also noted changes in nearly all the old landmarks of the town where he had once made his home.

"While a village then, Mishawaka is now a thriving city, with excellent paved streets and fine buildings," Mr. Jones said.

Mr. Jones left Mishawaka 52 years ago to come to Marion.

He had been employed there for two years. He went to Mishawaka Monday, returning last night.

ACCUSED OF MURDER

Woman, 23, Under Bond on Charge of Slaying Husband

Cincinnati, Aug. 4—Mrs. Ethel Hogan, 23, was at liberty today under $4,000 bond on a charge of murdering her husband, Webb Hogan, 33, in the doorway of their home near Sanfordtown, Ky., July 26.

Mrs. Hogan was arrested by Kenton County, Ky., authorities as she appeared at the Covington, Ky., city building to appear against three men who had been held in connection with the shooting. The warrant charged "wilful murder."

At the time Hogan was shot, Mrs. Hogan related that they had been awakened early in the morning by a prowler, and that as Hogan opened the rear door he was shot down from ambush. PETITION IS SIGNED BY 300 IN COUNTY

Would Give Ohio Voters Chance To Decide Proposed Salary Boost for Judges

More than 300 signatures have been obtained to an initiative petition being circulated in Marion county in behalf of a movement to give present Ohio judges the benefit of a proposed salary increase, it was stated by local attorneys in charge of the work.

The petition, together with others circulated throughout the state, are a part of a campaign to have the proposal placed before voters of the state at the general election in November.

The petition provides that should the legislature enact a law increasing judges' salaries, judges then in office would share in the increase along with those elected after passage of the bill.

The state constitution now provides that the salary of a judge can not be increased during his term of office. The petition does not provide for a salary boost but if passed will permit experienced judges to share in any salary increase voted by the legislature, according to Grant E. Mosser, who is in charge of circulation of the petition here.

PROGRAM OF WORK FINISHED FOR YEAR

1928 Improvement Schedule at McKinley Park Practically Complete, Is Report

With the completion of the boulevard drive from Delaware av., to the park, improvement work at McKinley park will practically cease for the year, it was stated yesterday by attorney U. C. Fisher, president of the city park board.

The waterbound macadam of the boulevard has been practically completed and the drive through the park connecting with Prospect st., has been improved and will remain unchanged until next year.

It is the plan, Mr. Fisher said, to complete as much of the improvement as is necessary to make the surroundings harmonize with the landscape at the Harding Memorial in order to present an attractive view at the time of the dedication.

Slavery Not Abolished

Will Finds Civil War Argument Still Prominent with Factions of Church; Don't Know War Is Over, He Says

By WILL ROGERS

I had to get out by midnight

ALL I know is just what I see in the papers and what little is beat into me as I browse hither and thither. Made a trip east a week or so ago, had a funny experience. I had boosted so much for Aviation that I couldent get a seat on the Mail line myself. I had not made up my mind just on what day to go till a couple of days before leaving, and then phoned down to "Save me a place on plane leaving Wednesday morning from Los Angeles to New York." Say, they almost give me the laugh.

"Why we havent a place on our planes for weeks." They tried to trade around and get me in but couldent do it, so I had to make the trip on the train. Well part of it I got in on a plane. So you see Commercial aviation is coming along fine. All they need now is just bigger planes, with more comfort and convenience for the passengers.

The day I left, Fred Stone, the actor, flew out to California to see me in his own plane. He carries a Pilot and a good one, the same as all private planes do. But he has learned to pilot himself. He has made several Solo flights. He gets a great kick out of it. It is his whole recreation. He has given up golf entirely, says he would rather fly around all afternoon anytime than walk around playing Golf. He went out the air mail route and came back the southern way by El Paso and Dallas.

It's the Short Trips

We have quite a few Actors now that have their own planes, and quite a few of the Film Stars. But none of the so called Dare devils that you read so much about, none of them fly. I should say that there is as many private planes in use now as there was private Autos at the same stage the Automobile business. I think the thing is greater for small trips than even for long ones, for you might become tired or if rough maby sick on long trips, but its the short ones that you really save time. Now for instance my train left Los Angeles in the heat of the evening, and it would have taken me at least an hour and a half to drive from my place out at Santa Monica down through the city to the depot. Well I drive over a couple of miles to an aviation field and leave almost two hours later and go to San Bernidino 70 miles away about dark when its cool and nice.

I was on Long Island and had to go down to Asbury Park for a speaking engagement, grabbed a plane, went right over Coney Island, and Sandy Hook and was away down there on the Jersey Coast in less than a half hour. It would have taken an hour and a half into New York and two and a half hours from there to Asbury, where we would have had to wait for Ferries across Staten Island. Then I went to Newport, Rhode Island, in an hour and a half, where it would have taken a whole day, or night on train or boat. We flew around over Montauk Point and along the south shore of Long Island, and it's a beautiful trip, so I say it's these short trips that are really the pleasant ones, and the great time savers.

I had a fine visit the other day with Governor Moore of New Jersey. He is the popular Democratic Governor of that State and all that keeps him from being re-elected is that a Governor of that State can't succeed himself. He was elected as a wet, and so it looks like Al if he runs on his "inclination" instead of on the "Democratic Platform" will carry New Jersey. Al was to come down there for a big day at the Governor's summer home at Sea Girt, and they expected the biggest crowd that had ever assembled in that Country. Al was to take em a speech and they are near enough to New York to understand it.

It's a great place to land in an Aeroplane, right in the Governor's yard. Was to speak at Ocean Grove. It's that Methodist settlement you never heard so much about, where they don't let an Automobile in there on Sunday, no amusements running. Just kinder go into prayer and meditation. I was in there Saturday night and had to get out by midnight. So on account of having me in there in their wonderful Tabernacle, it looks like they will stand for anything up to Sunday. My offering was to be kinder in the nature of a "Message," I dont know who from, whether it was from the Mount, (Mount Hollywood) or Mount Sinai. But it was kind of an "Offering."

Nice of 'Em

Well this little Governor introduced me, and on account of him being a Democrat and a wet, it was a mighty nice of them to let either one of us in there. But we had to have it in our agreement that we both were to be out of the grounds before the Sunday started. Then I imagine they prayed that nothing either I or the Governor said would remain in their memory.

But do you know they was just about as human an audience as you ever saw. I dident tell em that I was a South Methodist. That would have been worse than telling them that you had gone High Hat and joined with the Episcopals. You know there is two Gangs of Methodists, the North and the South. Well this bunch were North, and our troop down home are "South," the difference is that one believed in Slavery and the other dident. That is their only fundmental difference. Now the war has been over since '65, but they are still building different churches in various towns. Then they tell you that people have learned and get broader minded. Now what has slavery got to do with Conditions now? There is just as much reason for some of these denominations being separate as there is for the Blondes to belong to one Church and the Brunettes to another.

Haven't Heard of It

Slavery hasent been abolished. If a Northerner can get a Negro to work for him cheaper than a White man why he will hire him. In the old days they could sell you to another Boss, but nowadays they can keep you till they want to get rid of you, then fire you and you have to hunt another Boss. So things don't change much after all. Things just get different names, but remain about the same.

But if the two set of Churches or a half dozen set of Churches went together and worshipped, why one set Preachers would be done away with, or maby five sets of them would have to hunt other vocations, for the more you combine the less help you need, so I guess they will just keep on "being at OUTS over Slavery," The Civil war has been over 63 years, but the Churches are the only ones that haven't found it out.

The Truck Driver

I believe Champion is the better spark plug because of the way Champions stand up in hard truck service.

Champion is the better spark plug because it has an exclusive sillimanite insulator specially treated to withstand the much higher temperatures of the modern high-compression engine. Also a new patented solid copper gasket-seal that remains absolutely gas-tight under high compression. Special analysis electrodes which assure a fixed spark-gap under all driving conditions.

Ritzy Rosalie

IT must be either Lindbergh or the Prince of Wales who is passing by, judging from the intense interest displayed by Rosalie and Penelope. By the way, they are both wearing new necklaces. Rosalie's is one of the new length string of pearls which is worn hanging to the waist rather than in a double strand as formerly. The center of the string contains pearls graduated in size, while the rest of the stones are medium. Penelope has one of the reversible necklaces, one side of which is metal for evening wear, while the opposite side is enameled in alternate square of two colors, for daytime wear.

YOUTH IS SHOT

Two Alleged Robbers Under Arrest, One in Hospital

Cleveland, Aug. 4—Two alleged robbers are under arrest in Euclid Village today, and one of them is in Nottingham hospital with a bullet wound in his thigh, inflicted by Patrolman Harry Hoffman last night.

Allen Brooks, 21, reported to police last night that two young men had jumped on the running board of his automobile and robbed him of $6, at the point of a pistol. Hoffman and another patrolman accompanied him in a search for the two.

When Brooks sighted the two men, whom he accuses of robbing him and the policemen put them under arrest, one tried to draw a gun, Hoffman said. The policeman shot this youth, who gave his name as Anthony Dolinar, 20, while the other, a boy of 16, submitted.

Life has been described as a "series of habits."

Reading one's favorite newspaper—eating one's favorite dish—driving to work over a familiar, favored route; all these are evidences of the power of a habit.

There are good habits and bad habits. We should encourage one kind and discourage the other.

Ranking high among the good habits is that of setting aside regular sums to build up a substantial savings account.

Lynn Adkins, Prisoner Who Escaped After Arrest Here, is Captured at Erie, Pa.

Caught by Officer from Whom He Escaped on July 9; Now in Jail at Columbus Awaiting Hearing; Girl in Case and Parents Face $25,000 Alienation Suit

Lynn Adkins, Columbus man who [illegible] spectacular escape from [illegible] of Ralph Paul of Franklin [illegible] his arrest in Marion [illegible] captured yesterday in Erie, Pa., is now in jail at Columbus awaiting arraignment.

He was caught in Erie by the officer from whom he escaped. Drops Robbery Charge

Paul dropped the robbery charge when he returned his prisoner to Columbus, yesterday, and Adkins will face trial on an affidavit accusing him of contributing to the delinquency of Mildred Huffman, 16, of Columbus.

It was on this charge that Adkins was arrested July 9 when he stepped off of a C., D. & M. interurban car here. It was alleged that he came here for the purpose of meeting Miss Huffman.

Adkins, whose occupation is salesman, escaped from Deputy Sheriff Paul when the automobile in which they were riding was near Stratford below Delaware. The Delaware man was arrested later, accused of aiding Adkins in his escape.

Miss Huffman the girl in the case, is now in the custody of the Big Sisters' association at Columbus.

Mrs. Adkins recently sued the girl and her parents for $25,000, charging Miss Huffman with alienating Adkins' affections.

STONE'S CAREER HANGS IN BALANCE

Fred Stone. wife.

NEW LONDON, Aug. 4—Fred Stone's stage career hangs in the balance today. Whether he will ever be in physical condition to return to his profession is something surgeons cannot determine for weeks, according to pronouncement here today.

Both legs were broken when his airplane crashed at Groton yesterday, and his left leg was broken in two places. To unite them successfully will take at least six months, surgeons believe, and there is a chance that even a longer time will be needed.

"Condition favorable" was the laconic hospital report today.

PROTESTS INNOCENCE IN MURDER OF GIRL

Former Air Mechanic Faces First Degree Charge; Again To Quiz Prisoner

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 4—Facing a charge of first degree murder, Russell S. Beitzel, former aviation mechanic, continued to maintain his innocence of the slaying of Barbara Morrow, whose nude body was found in a North Hollywood ravine.

Authorities, investigating the mystery, were prepared to go into the city jail cell where Beitzel is being held and subject the prisoner to another severe examination.

Beitzel's account, given to police during a prolonged questioning, was the basis upon which the murder complaint was formally lodged against him.

According to the former mechanic's story, he had met the girl in Philadelphia. Beitzel is said to have informed police, he abandoned a wife and two children, whose address was given by the prisoner as 1955 North 19th st. in the Pennsylvania city.

The accused man, according to officials, admitted having gone to the vicinity where Miss Morrow's nude body was discovered. One day, he is said to have told questioners, he borrowed a revolver and drove to the scene, where he engaged in target practice.

A little glycerine smeared around the glass stoppers of bottles will keep them from sticking.

SMITH IS SATISFIED WITH HIS PROGRESS

Nominee Expects To Return to Albany Sunday To Work on Speech

New York, Aug. 4—Satisfied that he is making rapid strides in his drive to capture the farm vote of the middle west, Gov. Al Smith will return to Albany tomorrow to begin work on the final draft of his acceptance speech. He expects to complete the address he will deliver on Aug. 22, in formally accepting the presidential nomination, in about 10 days and then he may take a brief vacation in the Adirondacks.

Jubilant because George N. Peek of Moline, Ill., who claims to be the spokesman for a million farmers in the corn belt, has announced he will support his candidacy, Governor Smith is quietly laying plans to win the support of other farm leaders.

Within the next 10 days the governor expects to have several conferences at the executive mansion at Albany with farm leaders. These meetings are to be arranged by Peek who has signified his intention of taking an active part in Smith's campaign. Leading members of the committee of 22 of the North Central States Agricultural conference of which Peek is chairman, are to be invited to discuss farm relief with the governor at Albany.

The Folly of Fools

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. W. H. HOWARD
Pastor First United Brethren Church

"He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool." Proverb 28 and 26.

A fool in a high station is like a man on a high mountain, everything seems small to him and he seems small to everybody.

An Arabian proverb says: "A fool may be known by six things: Anger without cause, speech without profit, change without progress, inquiry without object, putting trust in a stranger and mistaking foes for friends."

Now the wise man Solomon comes with a version of the matter and speaks as follows: "He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool." We are especially warned not to put our trust in man whose breath is in his nostrils. We are cautioned not to trust in riches, and not to make gold our confidence. The wise man does not want to hold out the idea that we should not think. It is the thinking man that helps the world. It is the thinking man who says, "I will consider the matter when perplexing questions are presented to him.

The young man who scorns the advice of older and wiser heads, especially from those who are capable of giving advice because of long and tried experience, will naturally come to the place where he will be forced to acknowledge the lameness of the text.

Many a home has been wrecked and ruined because the husband has set himself up as a tyrant or perhaps the wife has taken the reigns in hand and drove until she saw the brink and then wondered why.

Some confide in the moral goodness of their own hearts. Ask that moral man about these things and he will tell you that he has never done anything that is very bad and he is about as good as most people. He will say, "If some other people that I know get to heaven I will get there also," and at the same time condemns those of whom he is talking.

Naaman thought he must have a little favor shown him. He was a little better than those who were under his authority. But the command was given and the only thing left for him to do was to obey. And when he obeyed he was made whole.

Reason says that every man needs light. Suppose on tomorrow the sun would refuse to show his large face, what would you do?

The man with a little spark of religion can tell you all about the running affairs of the church and can tell those high in authority what to do and how to do it.

To trust in self is direct disobedience and unbelief. And when we do that we can have no claim on God's mercy and need expect no mercy when we are helpless and undone. We are commanded to trust in God only and in Jesus Christ as the Saviour of the world and we are to yield obedience to Him by serving Him in love. If you want to fall, then stand alone, and if you want to stand then fall out of self and then His almighty, comprehending and all-merciful arm will lift you up.

WOMEN RUNNERS WIN FROM GERMAN TEAM

Finn Team Sweeps Three Places in 3,000-Metre Steeplechase

OARSMEN DEFEATED

Cadillac A. C. Entry Ties for Second in Decathlon Event

Olympic Stadium, Amsterdam, Aug. 4—American four-man relay team of Frank Wykoff, Jimmy Quinn, Charley Borah and Hank Russell, running in that order, won its heat rather impressively in the 400-metre relay race at the Olympic games today. Hungary, finishing second, didn't force the Americans to their best and suffered further disqualification after the race, Germany being placed second. The Americans, evidently smarting under the series of defeats they have sustained in running races, finished the distance in 41 1-5, almost nipping the Olympic record of 41 second flat.

The Americans were always in front and won breezing, by 10 yards. In addition to the disqualified Hungary, the nations eliminated in this heat included Turkey and Japan.

Canadians Win Heat

The Canadians won the opening heat in 42 3-5 seconds with the British second and Italy, Greece, and Spain finishing next in order to be eliminated. The second heat went to France in 42 4-5 seconds with the Germans second. Belgium passed out of the competition in this heat.

The first heat of the ladies 400-metre relay saw the Canadians come down in front with Holland second and Italy a third, Swede being shut out.

The American team, comprising the Misses Mary Washburn, New York; Josie Cross, New York; Loretta McNeil, New York, and Elizabeth Robinson, Chicago, the 100-metre dash winners, won its heat of the 400-metre relay impressively in 49 4-5 seconds, beating Germany, Italy and Belgium in that order.

Quite as expected, the Finns cleaned up the 3,000-metre steeplechase final but, against expectations, Paavo Nurmi didn't win. The Flying Finn placed second to his compatriot, Loukola with Ashenius, Finland, third. It was Nurmi's second defeat in two days by a fellow Finn, the star of the 1920 and 1924 Olympics finishing behind Willie Ritola at 5,000-metres yesterday.

Loses Record

Incidentally, Willie lost his Olympic record for the event, Loukola being timed in 9:21 4-5, which was many seconds better than the record.

With rain pelting them in the face, the American relay runners romped to an easy victory over Canada in the semi-final of the 1,600-metre relay in 3:21 2-5.

Facing defeat for the second time in two days, this time at the hands of a French crew, the American entries in the pair-oarded shell with coxswain race, Gus Goetz, Joe Dougherty and their 14-year-old coxswain, Tommy Mark, were eliminated from the Olympic regatta today.

America got off to a good start today in the Olympic aquatic competition when Austin Clapp, of Hollywood, Cal., won the first elimination heat in the 1,500 meter swim in 21 minutes and 31 seconds.

Kenneth Dougherty, of the Cadillac athletic club, Michigan, was tied with two contenders for second place in the 100 meters race of the modern decathlon of the Olympic games this afternoon. The contest was a series of ties.

Viljoen, of South Africa was tied with Jarvinin, of Finland, for first place. Their time was 15:3-4 seconds. The European runners who tied Dougherty were Anderson, of Sweden, and Wessely, of Austrain. Their time was 15:4-5 seconds. Lundgren, of Sweden, finished third in 16:1-5 seconds. Barth, of Germany, was fourth in 16:2-5 seconds.

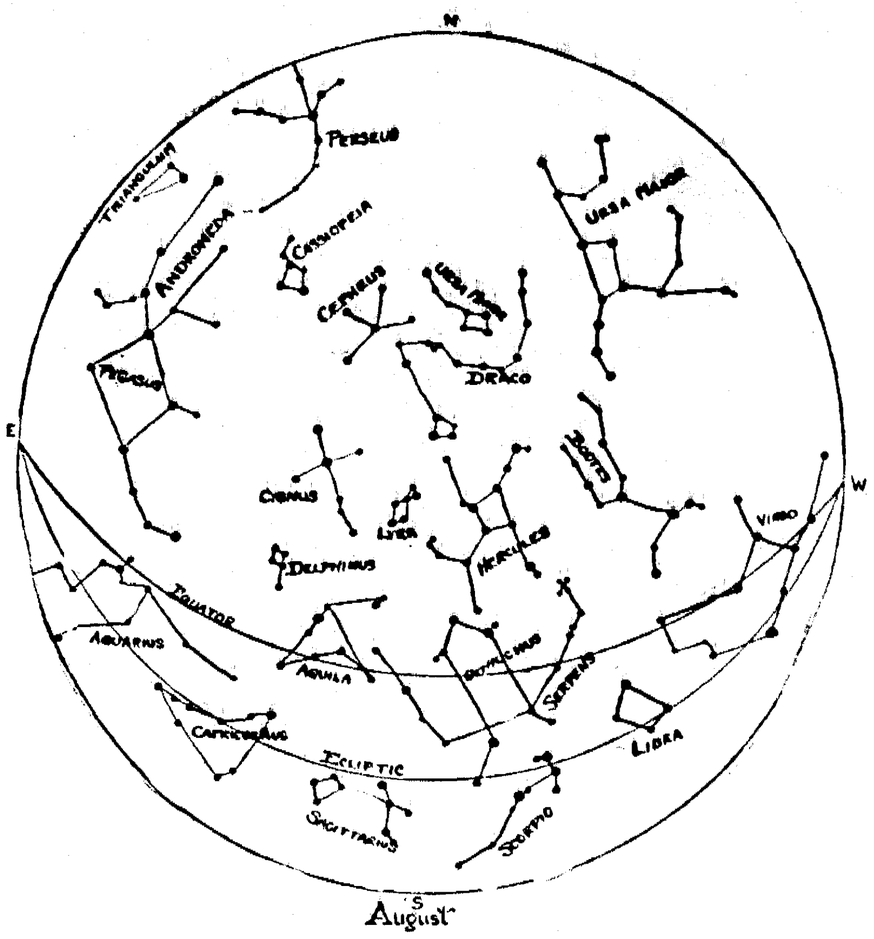
Through August With the Stars



BY DR. C. C. CRUMP
(Director of Perkins Observatory, Ohio Wesleyan University)

THE brightest star in the evening sky during the month of August, and the second brightest star that can be seen in these latitudes is Vega, the blue-white star in the constellation of Lyra. At the beginning of the month it is almost overhead at the time given below the chart.

It is interesting to watch for the stars as they first appear in the evening sky. Vega is one of the first stars to be seen. Arcturus the yellow-red star in Bootes, will be found about half way between the zenith and the western horizon in the early twilight. To the south and east Saturn is seen as a yellow star. To the right and a little lower down in the sky Antares, the red star in Scorpio, shines just a little fainter than Saturn itself. East of Vega and toward the north, Deneb forms the head of the Northern Cross.

For a time these stars are the chief stars seen. Very rapidly the fainter stars begin to appear and soon the entire sky is paved with bright patterns of gold and silver. Sweeping across the sky from the North East to the South West is the Milky Way. It is a fine thing to explore this region of the sky with a pair of opera glasses, especially the southern part of it. It is even better to take a small telescope and travel with it down this "Royal Road to Romance"—one can never quite appreciate the sky above him until he has made such a journey.

Represents Harp

The constellation of Lyra represents the harp which Apollo gave to Orpheus and upon which Orpheus played so beautifully that rivers ceased to flow and wild beasts forgot their cunning. Of all the nymphs who loved Orpheus only one did he love in return,—Eurydice. They were married but their happiness was of short duration. As Eurydice fled from Aristaeus who became enamoured with her, a serpent stung her and she died.

With his lyre in his hand Orpheus descended into the infernal regions and gained admission to the presence of Pluto. He played upon his lyre and Pluto and Proserpine were moved to compassion. They consented to restore Orpheus his Eurydice, providing that he refrained from looking back until after he had passed the borders of their dark domain. Eurydice followed him until just as the upper regions were in sight. Orpheus forgetting, or longing for his Eurydice until his senses failed him, turned to look at her. Immediately his loved one vanished and he was left alone to weep for her.

Murmur of Water

He separated himself from mankind. His lyre no longer made sweet music. The Thracian women in fury tore his body to pieces and threw it into the sea. His lyre was placed by the gods in the sky. The bits of his body were washed to the sea. It is said that on quiet evenings the water as it touches the shore murmurs "Eury-dice-Eu-ry-dice." Those who have loved and lost hear the wail and understand.

Vega with two faint stars just a little below it forms an equal-sided triangle. The southern faint star is in the corner of a small parallelogram. These stars with other faint stars in the region go to make up the constellation. The northern faint star in the triangle, Epsilon Lyra, is a double star. On a night when the transparency of the atmosphere is good two stars can be seen here without optical aid. With a telescope four stars are seen; each of the stars seen with the unaided eye is seen to be a double star.

At the southwest corner of the parallelogram is Beta Lyra, one of the best known variable stars. Its light varies a little over half magnitude in 12.9 days. About half way between the two end stars in the parallelogram is the Ring Nebulae, one of the finest objects of its kind in the sky. It can be seen only with the telescope.

27 Years From Vega

It takes light 27 years to reach us from Vega. The light the star sends us tonight left it in 1901. It is emitting 50 times as much light and heat as the sun. We believe the temperature of the sun's atmosphere to be about 6,000 degrees. The atmospheric temperature of Vega is probably as great as 14,000 degrees. The diameter is of great size, perhaps as much as 2.7 times that of our sun or 2,300,000 miles. If this estimate be correct the star, if it were a spherical shell would hold almost 25 million earths. In the year 13,928, Vega will serve as the North Star. The pole of the heavens is slowly changing due to the precession of the equinoxes and in about 12,000 years Vega will be the Pole Star.

The sun is moving through space at the rate of 12 miles a second. The earth and the rest of the planets, the satellites and all that belongs to the solar system go with it. The motion is nearly in the direction of Vega. At this rate of motion the sun moves through space 378,688,000 miles each year. If the motion were exactly in the direction of Vega, and if Vega did not move it would take us 475,000 years to reach it.

Vega is the "glory of the summer heavens." The Chaldean astronomers called it "Life of Heaven" and the Babylonians called it the "Messenger of Light."

Russian Town 'Terror' Plays Meanest Trick to Get Gifts On Recent Day of Marriage

Offers Silver-Mounted Horn Filled With Wine to Poorest Guest First and Garners Large Collection of Rubles From Richer Guests

Gandaya, Russia, Aug. 4—The entire village has sworn vengeance on Abdul Meshady, assistant manager of the local textile factory, for what is considered a mean trick played at the recent wedding.

Meshady used to be the village terror, stealing fruit, picking pockets and snatching purses, but he grew up to be a good communist and married the prize of the village whose dowry included five mules laden with valuable rugs, and several thousand rubles. Not satisfied with this, however, Meshady craftily planned a grand wedding celebration with a barbecue, the day after pay day.

A young bull was prepared for the barbecue, the bull was stuffed with a lamb, the lamb with a turkey and the turkey with a duck stuffed with apples. According to the local custom, he who gave the largest gift got the duck. When the hundred guests were assembled the bride, dressed in silks brought from Persia by her father, spread a silk shawl in the middle of the floor, and then filling a silver mounted horn with old wine, offered it to the poorest guest. He drank the customary toast to the bride—"May you have many sons and all like their father," and threw five rubles onto the shawl.

The rest of the guests were horrified, because none dared give less than the poorest. One by one they drank to the bride and sacrified their week's wages to pride and tradition, until finally the richest merchant found himself throwing three hundred ruble notes with a grand gesture into the shawl. He got the duck, and the others ate and drank as much as they could, according to the size of their gift.

Now they are going around the village with empty pockets, and the favorite toast is, "May he have many sons, but none like their father."

French Painter Lives in Cave on Just $24 a Year

PARIS, Aug. 4—Twenty-four dollars is all that John Oslund has in any one year to feed and clothe himself. Some years he manages to save half of it. How does he do it?

First of all, John pays no rent. He lives in a cave between Nice and Grasse. He has occupied the same cave for five years out of sight of landlords and other component parts of civilization.

His tailr bills neer bother him. John has two suits. One is his birthday suit. In that he appears every day. The other suit consists of a pair of corduroy trousers, a blue shirt and a belt.

Must Dress for Town

The latter getup he is obliged to wear on his trips to Grasse, where he goes once a month to receive his allowance at the post office, also to make such few purchases as his two dollars and few needs dictate.

On his "estate" John has a little garden patch where he raises turnips. He believes they will help him attain 150 years. He still has 95 years to go.

John sleeps on a bed of pine branches. He uses moss and leaves for a pillow. He has never been sick, except once, but that was before he began his hermit existence in the Maritime Alps. Just a slight cold he explains.

Wants No Money

How does he spend his time—and money? By painting all the painting materials. John firmly believes that one day the world will recognize him as the world's greatest painter since Rembrandt and Rubens. Not that he expects to make any money out of it. He does not want money, and would feel hurt if anyone ever offered to buy one of his canvasses.

It was five years ago that John retired from the world to paint "in peace." He expresses his determination to stay retired until the world makes a broad avenue to the entrance of his cave.

Oslund, a Swede by birth, is a highly cultured man. He was educated in Stockholm, and holds a Ph. D. degree from the University of Upsala. His deep knowledge on a variety of subjects is amazing, and he speaks six languages fluently in addition to his native Swedish.

Condition Unfavorable—A change for the worse was reported today in the condition of Martin Luther Miller, who is critically ill at his home, Potter st. Mr. Miller is suffering from internal injuries sustained Wednesday when he fell while extracting a nail from a fence at his home.

PROTEST "WHITE LIST"

Bowling Green Dry Leader and Columbus Candidate Rap Moore

Columbus, Aug. 4—Names of Lester D. Hill, Bowling Green, a Wood county dry leader, and of Attorney Matthew L. Bigger, Columbus, a candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, today were added to the list of prominent Ohio supporters of the dry cause who publicly voiced vigorous exception to the issuance this week by Dr. E. J. Moore, superintendent of the Ohio anti-saloon league, of a "sample" ballot endorsing certain candidates for state offices.

Hill, who resides in Begg's home district, telegraphed Moore requesting an explanation for the failure to endorse Begg on this ballot, it was stated.

Recalling that the league's advisory committee recently endorsed both Begg and Cooper, Hill was credited with stating that, if the league's officials did send out these ballots, "trustees of the Anti Saloon League reversed the action of their advisory committee."

Asserting that he was "sincere" in his support of the dry cause, Bigger, in an open letter, accused Superintendent Moore of "insincerity and such gross neglect as in equity amounts to fraud, or the utterance of a deliberate and malicious falsehood."

Bigger asked Moore to resign from the superintendency while Hill, it was stated, declared that "it is time they (Moore and other officials at league headquarters here) understand that they are not bosses but servants of the people."

MERCURY GOES TO NEW HIGH MARK

local thundershowers for late today and Sunday.

From a 92-degree high, the mercury last night dropped to 70 degrees, only five degrees less than the high for a year ago on the same date. At that time the mercury dropped to 54 degrees.

Cleveland residents were promised relief from the heat in thundershowers predicted for today. Cleveland's three heat victims were Gordon F. Whitney, 60; George Merkle, 45; and Miss Lucile Carr, 25. All died in hospitals after being stricken by the heat. A new high mark from the summer was recorded when the temperature reached 91

92 In Sandusky

Reports from Sandusky were that the mercury at one time went to 97 while at Youngstown a high mark of 99 was reported.

The hottest Aug. 3 in 46 years was recorded in New York City with a temperature maximum of 90 degrees. Showers which had been forecast for two days failed to materialize. There is a possibility of showers Sunday. Violent thundershowers brought the mercury down from the 95 mark, reports from Boston showed. The accompanying lightning did much damage in the greater Boston area, however, bolts striking several buildings, several persons narrowly escaping death.

Three children trying to escape from the heat were drowned in New England waters.

EMPEROR'S CARPET IS SOLD FOR $100,000

Highest Price Ever Paid for Floor Covering of Leopold I

London, Aug. 4—The highest price ever paid for a carpet was given here recently for the "Emperor's Carpet", made for a Persian Shah and eventually presented by Peter the Great to Leopold I. of Austria, which brought a sum in excess of $100,000 at Christie's.

The highest price previously paid for such a piece was during the recent Gary sale in New York, when Sir Joseph Duveen purchased a rare Ispahan garden carpet.

Bidding for the carpet was spirited, and the opening bid was $25,000. It was finally bought by an unidentified collector, believed to be an American, who made the purchase on behalf of the International Art Galleries.

The carpet was bought by a syndicate from the House of Hapsburg in 1925, and taken to Paris and New York. It was inspected by many wealthy collectors in the latter city, but the price asked apparently was too high, as no sale could be effected.

The carpet is reputed to be one of the finest kind in existence, but the price paid by the anonymous buyer has caused considerable surprise in art circles here, as it was more than it was expected the piece would bring.

FOGS OVER COAST

Flying Conditions Between New York and Halifax Unfavorable

New York Aug. 4—Dense fogs hung over the Atlantic seaboard from Halifax to Nantucket light today as the two Polish fliers, Maj. Louis Idzikowski and Maj. Casimir Kubala, were believed to be nearing American waters. Complete reports of weather conditions had not been received at noon, but Dr. James H. Kimball of the U. S. Weather bureau announced that flying conditions between New York and Halifax were decidedly unfavorable owing to winds, rains and the fog.

Meanwhile plans were being actively arranged for the reception of the fliers upon their arrival in New York. Grover Whalen, chairman of the mayor's committee for reception of distinguished guests, said plans were not yet complete pending definite word of the fliers.

The Polish minister in Washington, Jan Ciechanowski, made a special trip here to be on hand when the airmen arrive and consulted with Polish Consul General Eugene Rogirodowski and Thadeus Marynowski, consul in New York.

would act as spokesman for the other men.

It was an all-night struggle in the night—enshrouded waters.

Towards morning Mr. George, who, while a swimmer was not as familiar with the water as the other two, gradually relinquished his hold on the boat, Mr. Reep said, and finally his grip and sank below the surface.

Knowing that he was beyond aid, Mr. Reep held the body of his friend by one hand and clutched the boat with the other, until his own safety made it necessary that other measures to retain Mr. George's body, be taken.

It was then that Mr. Reep and Mr. Hableman tied a rope around Mr. George's neck and fastened it to the boat, it being imperative that all their efforts be given to holding their own in the rough-ened waters.

Knot Unfastened

The knot fastening the rope around Mr. George's neck later became untied, allowing his body to sink while his friends looked on helpless.

The memorial service for the late Marion pastor will be conducted by the Rev. E. Radebaugh, pastor of Calvary Evangelical church, assisted by the Rev. W. F. Rutherford, of Wellston, O., an old friend of Mr. George, and J. H. Harris, superintendent of the southeastern conference of the United Brethren church.

Mr. Reep, survivor of the tragedy and Mrs. Reep as well as members of the ladies' quartet of the church, will also take part.

Mr. and Mrs. Reep, who are evangelistic singers, and Mr. George had traveled together a number of times and were at the present time planning several evangelistic tours for winter.

The Rev. Mr. Hableman, Mr. George's other companion on the ill-fated fishing trip, is still in a state of exhaustion from the experience. He remained at White's Landing with his wife and family.

Daily Proverb—"First a turnip, then a sheet, next a cow, and then the gallows."

Watching the Night Mail.

If you are of the first and second generations, and particularly from a real small town, you probably can recall going down to the railroad station and watching the passenger trains come in. They held a gripping thrill. And the mail trains! What romance their arrival and departure conjured!

As you grew older and the town grew bigger the novelty of the incoming train wore off. If some one were to tell you today that he was going down to the station to watch one of the evening mail trains come in you would consider him strangely provincial and something of an human antique.

But we live in cycles. And despite our advanced age, our intimacy with inventions that revolutionize our very existence—the telephone, the radio, the motion picture, the high-powered automobile and the speeding airplane—we revert back to our curiosity days.

The other day Columbus became an integral part of an air mail route. When the first plane arrived at the Capital City's airport there was a crowd to greet the ship and its pilot who dropped three sacks of mail, picked up the same number, then bid adieu to the crowd and was off to Dayton.

A Marion man who was at the Toledo airport recently and saw the night mail plane arrive declared that more than a thousand persons were gathered about the field to watch the big ship land. Think of it—a thousand! And, if you were to suggest that any one of that thousand go to the railroad station and watch one of the evening mail trains come in he would look at you with askance.

But this is a different age and the thing to do is to watch the night air mail come in.

Mr. Ford's Philosophy.

In the opinion of Mr. Henry Ford, young men would make a mess of running the world alone. That is to say, without the guidance of men more than fifty years of age, this old world would have a more or less hectic time getting along. This observation by Mr. Ford was made to newspapermen upon the occasion of his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary.

Nowadays this has come to be popularly considered as the age of youth. The passing of mustaches, beards and the like was the first symptom. Then the women cut their hair and shortened their skirts. Men took to knickers and the women took to rolled hose. So it became increasingly difficult to differentiate between the man or woman of more than fifty years of age, and the youngster who ought still to be using a teething ring.

But through it all Mr. Ford maintained his equilibrium and went on in a sane way manufacturing something every one needs. From his sixty-five years of contact with the world of barter and trade—from his personal experience with young men and old, then—Mr. Ford has come to the conclusion that what the world needs is the sage and sound advice of the men who have seen half a century of life, rather than the advice of the youngster just emerging from his cocoon.

In some respects one is inclined to agree with Mr. Ford. Particularly is this true of the man who is getting along in years, and who has resented for some time—quietly, however, and without making a fuss of it—the temerity of youth and the struggle of youth to push age into the discard and relegate him to the back shelf. The older men will appreciate what Mr. Ford says for this reason—and for the additional reason that they, themselves, have for a long time believed precisely what Mr. Ford now has put into words.

And why shouldn't they? Youth beyond question has contributed much to the advancement of the people and the nation. Youth and ambition make an ideal combination. But is such a combination any more important—of any more benefit to the world at large—than age and stability and reason and caution? Not by a long shot, or any manner of means.

Impetuousness would soon run all of us into trouble. Caution acts as the brake which retards the headlong speed of youth.

Another thing which Mr. Ford announced on his birthday anniversary, is that he considers his great wealth merely a public trust which must be put back into the manufacture of something that will help men and women to better and more productive lives. Just what Mr. Ford means remains to be seen, but to any one acquainted with the ideals of this man, it is not unreasonable to expect that his money—rather, the public money paid him for the manufacture of a better motor car—will be used for some purpose which will result in great benefit for every one.

That would be like Mr. Ford. At sixty-five he still is in vigorous health, still keen for commercial and industrial activity, still a believer in his fellow men and still anxious to do something to help every one.

Hear and See Them.

Twenty years ago, according to the Star files, Marion theatergoers were enjoying "talking movies." And, said the Star account, theatergoers were so anxious to see them that practically every seat in the opera house was taken before the performance got under way. The program included "East Lynne" and "The Dispatch Bearer."

That was twenty years ago. The picture was flashed on the screen, a jumpy, wobbly picture at that. From behind the screen came the scratching of a phonograph record and then the "talkies." Some times the action and the lip movements of the players and the phonograph voices synchronized but most of the time they didn't. So crude was the mechanism and so poor the results that it was not long until the "talking pictures" were forgotten.

In the intervening years motion pictures and phonograph recording have made unbelievable strides. Today the "talkies" have come back. They threaten to revolutionize the motion picture business.

The latest development is the banding together of a group of New York stage producers and their purchase of the rights to a "talking" invention. They say they will present their successful Broadway dramas and musical shows in the sound films with the original casts. Predictions that the end has come for touring companies are heard. And, the Actor's Equity association, the "union" of theatrical profession, grows nervous, sees depression among theatrical people and warns them not to act for a talking motion picture until Equity regulations have been agreed upon.

The talking pictures will not supplant the stage any more than the movies have supplanted it. It is true that the movies have made inroads into theater business in small cities. But New York today has more theaters housing stage productions than it had ten years ago or five years ago. So has Detroit. So has Chicago. So has Cleveland. Those theaters will continue. The "road" will be little affected because there isn't any "road" any more.

It is not only the movies that have forced out traveling productions. It has been the increasing expenses of productions, players and traveling. Producers, too, have sent shoddy casts out on the "road" and the paying public has been hoodwinked so much that it has revolted.

So we are to have the talking pictures of Broadway stage productions. Such plays with the real New York casts will be a godsend to the provincial theatergoer. Once again he will see his favorite star and hear her voice. But the theaters in New York and the other big cities will continue their stage productions and smaller cities will still have their stock companies and the silent movies will continue. The "talkies," of course, will make inroads, but we see them supplementing the regular films instead of supplanting them.

Let Joy Be Unconfined.

Don't allow yourself to become bored by the things within your reach.

It takes interest in things to produce the mood to procure better.

It is unwise to be completely satisfied with small possessions.

But there should be a certain satisfaction in results or gains.

It is difficult to formulate plans for a brighter future when your frame of mind is one of dejection.

With a dark perspective you can't see the future clearly enough.

You must feel joy in what you have, and seek for better possessions.

You must be able to picture what you would like in the future.

You must have an imagination vivid enough to see the way to make that home of dreams come true.

Your present outlook has a direct bearing upon your future success.

Don't encourage gloomy thoughts.

Dark days will come even when you fight against them.

But it is your fault if you nourish the thought of despair and failure.

So appreciate the good you have and let joy in little things encourage you to aim high.

Bedouins Are Jolly Old Souls.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Poetry plays an important part in the life of the Bedouin. And by poetry, I mean not only actual verse, but the beauty of life, of nature, of love. For these people are keenly sensitized to the "finer things of life." Picture these "wild, unbridled" men, wrapped in their burnouses, riding madly over the desert sands. Nothing less than murder and arson can be in their minds, you think. But listen to their voices, and be prepared for a great surprise. For it is not the plan for their raid of which they are speaking. They are reciting poetry.

The Arabs will travel for miles, each contributing his verse. Not a moment elapses when one man signifies that he has finished before the next takes it up. And so they ride on, for miles and miles, singing their desert songs, in a wild sweet minor and reciting their desert poems.

The coffee pot contributes much to the life of the Arabs. Never would they travel without it. The moment they pitch camp, out comes the mortar, pestle and pot, the coffee is ground, and the men sit around the camp fire. Sipping the hot, syrupy liquid they again sing their songs, and recite their verse. And then, one by one, as they grow tired, they wrap themselves in their blankets, turn over before the fire and fall asleep, lulled by the voices of their companions.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Vagrant Verse.

THE HUMMINGBIRD.

In jungles where the bushmaster was grim
Coiled death by thick, black, irridescent gleams
Of slowly moving, mud-dammed tropic streams,
The hummingbird heard something calling him
Not parrots, green and gold, nor any slim,
High piping lizard where the wet grass teems
With crawling, crying things; but out of dreams
Beyond the sunrise and the mountain rim.

He saw the condor spreading like a tree,
And knew how small he was, but cool and far
The call came over the great gulf's hot blue;
And as a soul called to eternity
Forgoes the world and nuds its destined star,
Upon his small, bright wings he rose and flew.

GETTING BOTH EARS FULL.

Reduce by Dieting.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Isn't it a strange thing what tortures human beings will submit to in order to get thin and willowy, or to add flesh so as to be plump? More medicines have been sold for their alleged value in changing the figure than for all the real ailments of the human family.

Not long ago I was a guest at a dinner party. My charming hostess had a great, crescent-shaped black and blue mark on her upper arm. Fearing that I might be asking an embarrassing question I did not inquire what had happened, but she saw my glance and the interrogation in my eyes.

Then she told me the story of going to a "doctor" who proposed to "reduce" her by hypodermic administration of some "serum." When the arm turned black my hostess said she took sensible advice and decided to reduce by the natural methods—by eating less and exercising more.

I am more and more concerned over the way women dose themselves with powerful drugs which have a reputed value in taking off flesh. Dear friends, it isn't safe to do this. You can not afford to trifle with your good health by any such methods.

Well chosen, systematically employed, physical exercises are of great value. But they are of no use unless used every single day and with energy sufficient to produce what I always refer to as "honest sweat." Simply to perspire is not enough—one can do that in a hot room. You must produce perspiration by the energy of the muscular effort you make. Perspiration of this sort seems actually to dissolve the fat.

You must learn to make a wise selection of your foods. It is not necessary to starve yourself or to grow weak from the need of food. When you study food values it does not take long to find out what substances must be taken sparingly because they are rich in fats or carbohydrates. At the same time you will learn which foods may be taken in unlimited quantities.

It is a common mistake for fleshy persons to think they can not drink water. All the water the system craves may be taken in safety. It is unwise to drink much at meals. The reason for this is not because the water "dilutes the gastric juices" but because drinking quantities of water helps you to swallow more food than you need. It is food you never would take if it had to be put through the process of chewing and mixing with the saliva to prepare it for swallowing.

Water helps to dissolve the wastes and to put into solution materials which should be taken from the body. Some of these, if retained, may retard the assimilative processes and this may assist the addition of fat.

Don't take drugs to get thin, but use common sense and the natural methods.

GOLF CLUBS SET GOOD EXAMPLE.

Just what the golf vote may amount to is not the chief point of interest in the movement to have the links closed on election day, or for a part of the day. While the golfers are, of course, becoming numerous, the value of their example in this case will extend far beyond themselves. It is a reminder to the citizens generally that election day is not a holiday in the ordinary sense, but a day supposed to be devoted to public service. Under a system of self-government the people, in fact, serve their own best interests by the discharge of public duties. Frequently it has been charged that many who look upon themselves as the "best citizens" are, in reality, the poorest when it comes to voting. They do not go to the polls; they are among the stay-at-home vote. In some districts more appear to stay at home on election day than go to the polls. It has been emphasized repeatedly that the total vote of the country is just about half what it should be. Moreover, among the stay-at-homes are many whose interests may suffer particularly from bad government. Their own means of obtaining improvement is to get out and vote themselves for the best candidates and soundest governmental policies. Other clubs should follow the lead of the golfers in contributing toward getting out the vote.—Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

BRITAIN'S CHILDLESS TOWN.

In the Huntingdonshire district of England is the village of Caldecot, a delight to the eye of the tourist and a paradise for dreamers. Blossom-bedecked foliage lines the lanes that approach it. Its quaint streets are shaded by giant trees that interlace high in the air. The houses are Old-world. The village green is a stretch of carefully kept sward brilliant with flowers and inviting the weary to rest on its shaded benches.

Yet there is something strange about Caldecot that is at first puzzling and then startling to the stranger. For nowhere, upon the green or in the lanes, is the voice of a child heard. Never is the silence that broods over the place broken by happy laughter or the patter of little feet. There have been no children in Caldecot for ten years. It is a village of old men and women, completely deserted by the younger generation.

It is difficult to imagine a community without children. Their presence lends an atmosphere of life, a progression of the scheme of existence. In Caldecot, the stream seems dammed and stagnant, doomed to dry up and vanish. In a few years, there will be no Caldecot. A sad village, surely.—Columbus Dispatch.

IF A PRESIDENT-ELECT SHOULD DIE.

General Obregon's death and the discovery that the Mexican constitution makes no provision for appointment of his successor has revived discussion of similar omissions in our own fundamental law.

For example: our constitution says nothing as to who should be president if the president-elect and vice president-elect should die between the date of the adjournment of the electors as they meet in the several states on the second or third Wednesday in January and the fourth of March following.

Again, the constitution says nothing about who should be president if, on inauguration day after the president and vice president have been sworn in, both should die. There is not much likelihood of this, yet it might happen.

Probably what would take place is that the secretary of state under the outgoing administration would become president. But serious objections might develop, especially in the event that the outgoing administration were in disfavor and the new one were elected as the result of a great popular uprising.

Plainly, these discrepancies should be remedied so that we may be prepared for any possible situation.—Youngstown Vindicator.

The Rotating Earth.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

I often receive letters from persons who think that an aviator, by going to a great elevation and coming to rest there would be enabled to see one-half the earth's surface roll under him in twelve hours, and if he waited twenty-four hours would find himself again exactly over the place from which he started.

This is true enough, if he could remain at a fixed point in space with reference to the rotating earth. This he could not do unless he drove his plane westward at the same rate that the globe rotated eastward beneath him. But if he could stay motionless the atmosphere, rotating with the globe, would then roar past him at a speed of many hundred miles per hour—1,000 miles at the equator, 500 miles in latitude sixty degrees.

Even if he rose beyond the limits of the atmosphere into empty space, he could not free himself from the inertia of motion acquired from the rotation of the earth before he left its surface. Neglecting the effects of air resistance while he was still within the atmosphere, he would carry with him the same eastward motion that he had at the start, and if he ceased to move away from the earth he would revolve around it at a linear speed corresponding with that of the earth's surface in the latitude of his starting point.

Some curious conclusions may be derived from considering the effects of this inertial motion. For instance, let the aviator start from a point on the equator and direct his course straight northward. As I have shown in former articles dealing with the deviation of moving bodies as a consequence of the earth's rotation, the airplane would drift off eastward over the earth's surface as it progressed northward. But, free it from all friction or other atmospheric interference, and the full force of its eastward inertial motion would be retained by the plane, so that when it arrived at latitude sixty degrees north its eastward motion would be double that of the earth's surface directly beneath it, and so it would in effect travel around the earth without effort, passing through the whole 360 degrees of longitude in twenty-four hours. But the circumference of the earth at sixty degrees latitude is only one-half as much as around the equator.

The underlying principle is precisely the same as that which enables a ship to shorten the transatlantic passage by taking a northerly course, where the number of miles in a degree of longitude is less than on more southerly parallels.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Aug. 4—The British notion that all trade is slightly vulgar may cling to perfidious old Albion but it does not click in New York. That is not anymore. Society is taking up trade and making it hum. And not losing social caste either.

It used to be that only when a family fortune was dissipated a member of the upper crust went despairingly to work. Then for a time work was an occasional hobby but lately it has become a serious, earnest and permanent endeavor.

For several years Mrs. Marjorie Oelrichs has conducted an exclusive specialty shop in the fashionable East Side. Likewise Mrs. Richard R. Wilson. Elsa de Wolfe is an interior decorator with a shop on Fifth avenue, and Elisabeth Marbury at seventy is producing plays again.

Any number of reigning debutantes fit in idle hours acting as saleswomen on commission for interior decorating and antique shops, jewelry houses and art galleries. They have offices where they do most of the soliciting by telephone.

Mrs. Brock Pemberton is head of a theatrical costume department of a big store. Julia Hoyt, whose social position and reputed beauty have been highly exploited, left society for ultra-Bohemianism and a career on the stage. Peggy Hoyt, a society girl, is head of a fashionable dress making salon.

Two well known society girls have opened a haberdashery shop on east Forty-Eighth street. Rebecca Stickney, from an aristocratic family, is a fashion writer on Harper's Bazaar. Still another famous Long Island matron has an executive position with a bank.

Basil Durant, reputed to mingle with society but best known as a professional dancer, is director of a men's apparel department in a store. Ted Trevor, similarly known, is head of the aviation department in the same place. And last but not least is cherubic and blue blooded Maurie Paul, who as Cholly Knickerbocker is society editor of a newspaper.

The drift of foreigners to certain metropolitan localities is a phase of New York's shifting panorama somewhat like sheep following the leader. A few locate in a certain neighborhood and almost over night it becomes a Little Italy or a little something or other with all the native smells and everything. One of the newest colonies is on 116th street. It is Little Porto Rico. There are 75,000 Porto Ricans in the greater city, and 116th street, like Chinatown for Chinese, has become their stamping ground. It has its own cafes serving native dishes, its own newspaper, movie theaters and other amusement haunts, as well as its churches and community club houses.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

A New York pickpocket with a record of twenty-five arrests and ten convictions was recently sent over the road once more. It is learned that he used the proceeds of his thievery to send one son to college and to keep another in high school. He had a father's heart and a normal father's impulse to do as well as he could by his children. Sense of moral responsibility and sense of justice seemed to be lacking. Some people seem to be born with mental parts missing. Unfortunately there is no general parts factory from which they can be supplied. Some are born with the wrong parts. They suffer all their lives from mixed impulses. They are deserving of our charity.

Chemistry may disarrange our world of affairs in queer fashion. Chemists may one day turn lead into gold by re-arranging the atoms. By releasing new forces, finding new sources of power, they may junk gas and coal and the old means of power. They may make gold so cheap that the financial system of the world will be upset. Our belief in gold is a striking example of confidence in things unseen. We believe great quantities of it are laid away in the vaults of the United States treasury and sub-treasuries. On the presence of that gold rests the currency plan of the republic. Paper money is good because the gold is there—or rather because we believe the gold is there. Suppose somebody in the night changed it all to lead bars. If we didn't know about it what difference would it make?

Much difference between adding years and growing old. The Ohio woman, who, at 101, has praise for the young girl of today and says "dancing beats all the medicine ever made," has added years until she has accumulated more than many of us ever will, but she has not grown old. Your age is within you, and you have a great deal to say about it.

Sinclair Lewis who has had much fun throwing rocks at American business men, Rotary clubs, and various other manifestations of American life, shows that he has at least the makings of common sense after all. Writing from England, where he seems to have got his eyes a bit opened, he says:

"This modern English business man, though he look more like an army officer than like a Chicago sales manager, though he live in a secluded cottage with a tennis lawn instead of in a Park avenue apartment, though he may not grind cigars in the corner of his mouth, is increasingly like the American business man in his every ideal and method. Personally, I am glad of it. I have a sneaking notion that closer alliances between British and American business men will do more to keep that peace without which our civilization will blow up than any pious aspirations of churches, pacificists, and radicals. I have been accused—even by the magnificent, the archducal international president of the organization—of saying nasty things about the Rotarians, but I assert that the growth of Rotary in Great Britain, where it already has hundreds of chapters, is more important for world tranquility than all the campaigns of the reformers put together."

Fire, Resulting From Explosion, Destroys Wyandot Farm House

TWO PLEAD GUILTY TO GRAND LARCENY

Pittsburgh Youth Held to Grand Jury for Farm Thefts

BOND FIXED AT $500

Guest for Employment Ends in Hardin County Jail

Kenton, Aug. 4—Pleading guilty to the charge of grand larceny in connection with the theft of articles from two farm homes east of here while the owners were threshing, two Pittsburgh youths were held to the Hardin county grand jury by Mayor W. J. Ochs late yesterday afternoon. Their bonds were fixed at $500 each.

They are: Clerus Curran, 18, and James Flanigan, 19.

The young men were placed in custody of Sheriff John W. Crooks and Chief of Police Sheldon as they were traveling eastward along the Erie railroad tracks near Pfeiffer station. Property taken from the two homes and valued at more than $80 was found in their possession, officials said.

Enter Dowd Home

According to their own story told upon their arraignment, the two youths came eastward in quest of employment but had been unsuccessful in finding work of any kind. Their parents are dead, they said, and they have no close relatives. Unable to furnish bail they were to be held in jail here awaiting action of the grand jury.

The first home they are alleged to have entered was that of M. T. Dowd along the Harding Highway. They entered through a rear window, taking, according to officials, a suit of clothes, shoes, ties, clothing and a shotgun, knife and a flashlight. Members of the Dowd family were at the home of a neighbor assisting with the threshing.

Suspicion was first directed toward the two when they were seen to leave the Cook home in Pfeiffer Station by C. F. Price, general store owner. Officials were notified. A small amount of money and a quantity of jewelry composed the Cook home loot, it was said.

RATE CUT PROPOSED FOR CITY OF KENTON

New Electric Lighting Schedule Now on File with State Commission

IN EFFECT SEPT. 4

Will Result in Big Saving for Citizens, Company Manager Says

Kenton, Aug. 4—A new schedule of residential and commercial lighting rates for the city of Kenton has been filed by the Ohio Power Co. with the public utilities commission in Columbus, W. T. Augur, district manager here, announced today.

The schedule, filed on Friday, is to take effect September 4.

The rates, Manager Augur said, are lower than the schedule now in effect and will mean a big saving in Kenton. The approximate amount over a period of one year, however, has not as yet been computed.

Although he has been informed the schedule filing, Mayor W. J. Ochs today said he was awaiting official word from the commission. Since the proposed schedule quotes lower rates there is hardly any possibility of the city entering any protest, he said.

The new residential lighting rate in Kenton will be:

First 30 kilowatts, 8 cents; next 30 kilowatts, 7 cents; next 40 kilowatts, 6 cents; and all over 100 kilowatts, 5 cents.

The new commercial lighting rates in Kenton will be: first 100 kilowatts, 7½ cents; next 100 kilowatts, 6½ cents; next 200 kilowatts, 6 cents; next 600 kilowatts, 5 cents, and all over 1,000 kilowatts, 3 cents.

The new schedule affects only lighting customers and not the utility rate for residential use in ranges, refrigerators, etc. These remain the same.

Friends and Associates Honor Retiring Rural Mail Carrier at Galion Picnic

James H. Barr Ends 24 Years of Service with Postoffice Force at Sixty-Ninth Birthday Anniversary; Misses One Day During Employment Period

GALION, Aug. 4 — James H. Barr, East Walnut st., who is retiring from his duties as rural mail carrier, was honored last night at a picnic given by his friends, associates and their families. The affair was held at Heise park and a picnic supper was enjoyed after which an enjoyable program was given.

John Woodward, assistant postmaster, gave the introductory talk and reviewed the work done by Barr while in the service of the Galion office. Miss Doris Cook and Miss Miriam Sayre contributed readings, Burnell Tennant gave an interpretation of old time fiddling and Burnell and David Tennant gave a violin and voice number.

The carriers of the local office were represented by Homer Simpson and Frank Cook, postmaster, who gave the final talk and presented Barr with an appropriate gift.

Barr celebrated his 69th birthday anniversary Thursday, his retirement becoming effective at that time. Barr has served with the Galion postoffice force for the past 24 years having begun his duties in March, 1904. He could have retired with pension four years ago but was granted an extension of time covering the period. During his entire service he was carrier on R. F. D. No. 4, and his report shows that there was only one day in that time that weather conditions prevented him from traveling his route.

Many changes have been made sine Barr began his duties, he said in his farewell speech last night. Roads have been improved, farming methods have changed and the one room schoolhouse which was an important factor in the early days of his service, has vanished almost entirely from the district.

FIRE STARTS IN KITCHEN

Owner Carried from Building by Son; Loss Partially Covered by Insurance

Wyandot, Aug. 4—Fire, caused from an explosion of a gasoline stove, early yesterday totally destroyed the farm residence of Mrs. Maria Harvey, situated three miles east of Wyandot.

The blaze, starting in the kitchen where the stove was located quickly spread to all parts of the structure. Mrs. Harvey was carried from the house by her son, Charles Harvey who also had made his home there.

Because the blaze had blocked all of the entrances to the building, Harvey was unable to save anything of value from the building.

MEXICAN law, more civilized than ours, does not permit the execution of a woman. For that reason the severest punishment that can be inflicted upon the Mother Superior Maria Concepcion Arebveda de la Llata is 20 years in prison.

The prosecutor announces that he will demand this penalty, although testimony reaching this country shows a no more serious crime on the part of the accused nun than an acquaintance with Toral, the murderer. The latter will plead "mental irresponsibility."

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

THE CLINGING OAK

Theoretically, man is the strong, powerful, upstanding oak that braves the storms and defies the lightning to protect poor, weak, clinging woman from all the hard and uncomfortable things of life.

• • •

Theoretically, he goes out into the world to face the battle every day. But it takes at least two women—a wife and a cook — to get him up, dressed, fed, assembled and started in the morning.

• • •

Theoretically, he labors tirelessly all day at the office. But almost any time you happen to drop in you will find him ready to talk golf while three or more women pound out his letters, file away his papers, answer his telephone calls and guard him from outside disturbance.

• • •

As a matter of fact, the mighty oak is a delicate orchid these days, who has to be shielded from all tiresome and troublesome tasks of life. He has been pampered by women until he is as sensitive and as helpless as a prima donna.

• • •

The things that a man "can't stand" are too numerous to mention. They range all the way from keeping track of his own clothes to writing letters, from the "petty details" of office work to the horrors of Spring cleaning.

• • •

Any woman who marries a man elects herself the guardian of his stomach, the nurse to his ego, the custodian of his nerves, the prop to his dignity, and the general property man in charge of his clothes.

• • •

He needs a woman to feed him, tempt his appetite and watch his diet, or the first thing you know he has wrecked his digestion and is laid up for repairs.

• • •

He may have to go out and "struggle with the world," but when it comes to struggling with the tradesmen, the cook, the janitor, the household budget, or the children's problems, it gives him a sick headache.

• • •

He may have to stand the strain of "Big Business," but he can't stand a noise around the house, he can't stand being bored, he can't stand going to church, and he can't stand warmed-over foods, or being interrupted, or having his newspaper mussed up, or writing to his mother. His NERVES are too sensitive!

• • •

One of a woman's sacred duties is keeping a man's ego bolstered up and re-charging his sense of importance when it runs down or something knocks it out of gear. He's got to have "encouragement" and "appreciation" to keep him in good working condition.

• • •

If all the women in the world should go on strike business would come to a dead standstill and men would probably start living on raw food or die of starvation. The harrowing DETAILS of life would be too much for them!

• • •

As it is, the "clinging oak" goes comfortably and sweetly through life, with some woman always to take the burdens off his shoulders, do the tedious work, keep track of his dates, find his shoes and tell him how wonderful he is!—Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

SCHOOL ALL YEAR

That's What California Superintendent Would Like to Have

Sacramento Calif.—Soft sunny summer may not mean playtime to swim in the old swimmin' hole if State Supt. of Schools William John Cooper tinkers with the school year in the fashion he outlined today.

The latch string will always be hanging out on the school house door the whole 12 months in the year if Cooper carries out his plan of a permanent "open door" policy in California schools.

A school year divided into five periods of ten weeks each, with two weeks off for everybody at Christmas is the educator's new school calendar.

But it will not be necessary to play hookey to go fishing for the superintendent expects Johnny and Willie to attend only four of the five semesters during the year.

"School vacations do not always occur conveniently for the rest of the family," Cooper asserted. "I would keep the schools open all the year and let the parents choose any ten-week term they cared to for vacation purposes."

Sweet-eating is greatly on the increase, especially among men. This is said to coincide with the decrease in drinking: people who eat sweets lose their taste for liquor.

BUILDING PERMITS REGISTER INCREASE

Projects Listed Here This Week Include Construction Estimated at $18,125

With nine building permits issued this week the program of building activities in Marion exceeded the previous week by $255. The total estimated value of construction work for which permits were issued during the week reached $18,125 compared to $17,570 during the preceding week.

Three permits for dwellings two to cost $3,000 each and one to cost $2,700 and a permit for the building of a storeroom on Davids st. at a cost of $8,500 helped swell the total for last week, while a permit to remodel the Kleinmaier store building on South Main st., at a cost of $17,000 brought up this week's total.

Permits for six garages estimated value at $575 and two for the remodeling of dwellings at a cost of $550, were included in the permits issued this week.

West Center st. building activities are progressing rapidly. Work on the new Palace theater at West Center and Campbell sts., is being pushed and it is the plan of the builders to have the theater proper completed in time for formal opening in the near future. While work on the six rooms on the first floor and the office rooms on the second floor is being carried on, special effort is being concentrated on the theater proper.

Forms for the basement walls of the Thew building on West Center st. east of the Harding Hotel, were completed Thursday and work of pouring concrete was started Friday. It is expected the basement will be completed by the middle of next week and it is probable that bids on the building proper will be asked for shortly afterward.

A ROMANCE OF GRIPPING HUMAN INTEREST

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

[illegible] that, of course.

[illegible] that happened or could [illegible] ever [illegible] behind the tall [illegible] might tip the scales [illegible] so much as a hair's [illegible] was married and gone; [illegible]. She walked away [illegible] not glancing around. [illegible]—oh, a high and [illegible]here. But she had no [illegible] in her young [illegible]. And she went home [illegible] closed those gates that [illegible] was to go winding into the years ahead; not a great thing but one surely to become so great as to sweep the course of existence into new and incredible ways for many, Emily among the rest.

Marilee Grainger, as intimate friend of the Rossiters—indeed as almost a member of the family—lingered after the guests had departed. And when finally she set out to walk through the grounds toward home, Kent went with her.

They loitered in the June night, taking the long way around by the pergola. Marilee stopped by the stone bench and sat down; after a moment Kent dropped beside her, rather wearily.

She had been chatting in a bright, vivacious way but now she fell silent. He struck a match for her cigarette and the light, flaring up, brought her face very close to his—showed her eyes, half smiling, with a waiting look.

It was more than a rumor that Kent was expected some day to marry Marilee. They had grown up together; all their lives they had known the same people, gone the same places, done the same things. By the time they had reached their middle teens everyone was pairing them.

"You've invited Miss Grainger? That meant Kent Rossiter, then—"

"Kent is coming? Have to include Marilee—"

Never a word had been spoken between them, but Kent when he thought of it at all, regarded this as a formality. His father, he knew, looked upon the thing as settled; Marilee's father and his own had been boyhood friends.

Marilee aroused no especial emotion in him. He sometimes felt a distaste for her eternal cigarettes and her manner of wearing too revealing clothes and her ability to swear like a truck-driver when she was angry.

But since she was one he always had taken for granted, he gave these things little thought.

Also he was sufficiently conventional-minded to wish to do the thing expected of him. Many of his sort have found their style cramped by this.

Now he caught the waiting look in her face and leaned forward, elbows on his knees, head down. He knew what it meant; he had seen it there often this past week.

"This as well as any time," his thought ran. "Settle it—have it over. Probably her right to an understanding now that Avis is married—"

Still he said nothing and a stinging restlessness caught him. A thing to be settled—a wife to be acquired coolly, all according to plan, as one acquires a profession and an office in which to practice it afterward.

Had Marilee any feeling for him more than he had for her?

Kent was too sensible not to know he was a good catch. Marilee might wish to marry him for that; she was, Avis often declared, cold-blooded.

Not such a bad arrangement after all, perhaps. What everybody would call a splendid match.

Yet he had a vision of himself spending life with this girl—standing beside her in a scene like tonight's transferred to the house next door—taking her away for a cut and dried European honeymoon as Van Alstyne had taken Avis—sitting at her dinner parties, trying to keep her to two cocktails instead of six. Marilee affected all the ultra-modern mannerisms.

She moved closer to him and slipped her hand into his. Rather an appealing little gesture coming from her; it lent against question and doubt with a flash of real liking. He leaned back and put his arm around her shoulders.

"Marilee—"

Perhaps she really did love him, perhaps his uncertainty hurt. At any rate she moved nervously and flung at him, "Oh, step on it, Kent! Get the agony over."

The flash of liking sputtered out. And when she twisted her hand in his, winning toward the fitness which had moved him before, he felt only a plodding sense of duty.

"Marilee—"

She was quiet now, waiting, pressing her arm against his side. But he hesitated again with his face turned away. No moon tonight and the air had turned murky; even the lights across the river were obscured.

Suddenly in the thick dark beyond the cliff a whistle sounded low and deep; it was answered by another lighter one, a signal that burst out like a shout of laughter.

Something warm and golden went piercing through him not so much a memory, perhaps, as a sensation.

It would not be true to say he had treasured the recollection of the last night he had sat here on this bench with a girl, or even that he held any really vivid memory of Emily.

Much water had flowed under the bridge since then and many had watched it flow. Life had led him into far places and had spread before him a moving panorama of change and event. Besides it is not the way of a man to wrap a thing in rose petals.

This was an impression of something infinitely sweet and tantalizingly elusive. And there was shame with it too, as of a tenderness repudiated. A dim thing, no more to be grasped than the fragrance of the flowers over his head.

Yet it reared itself like a wall between him and what he had been about to do.

All over in an instant; Marilee still waited. Almost, through the darkness, he could see expectantly fading from her eyes. For he knew she felt the wall.

"Want to be moving, Kent? Got another smoke?"

"Right-o. Light it for you? Guess it'll rain in another hour. Careful of those briars."

He left her at her door and knew she was mightily puzzled and disappointed.

Gilbert and Garbo to Team Together Again

NEWS OF MOVIES IN CINEMA CAPITAL

BY LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Star Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3—They consider it a lucky omen and news of great moment at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios that John Gilbert and Greta Garbo are to be reunited once more in "A Woman of Affairs." Louis B. Mayer is frankly optimistic because the two names, Gilbert and Garbo, always bring the shekels into the box office, and when all has been said and done the commercial angle is what makes any business a success.

That all the world loves a romance is as true today as it was when Sir Walter Raleigh spread his famous cloak on the ground. Report has again and again had it that John Gilbert is in love with Greta Garbo, and that she is willing to listen to his protestations of affection. The public, therefore, loves to see them together. Then, too, Gilbert and Garbo visualize a romantic idea for the girls and boys of the country.

Clarence Brown is slated to direct and Bess Meredythe is writing the scenario. "A Woman of Affairs" is from the pen of the gifted Michael Arlen and is a dramatic story with plenty of action and love interest.

"DRESSED TO KILL," I really think, did more to promote Edmund Lowe than even "What Price Glory." I have heard some of the film experts analyze his performance as being one of the best of its kind. First National took stock of him from the moment that picture was released.

First, he was engaged to play opposite Colleen Moore. Now he is back on the same lot doing a hero act in "Outcast," Corinne Griffith's next picture. (Speaking of Corinne somebody said the other day she and Walter Morosco had moved into their new house). "Out cast" is the play in which Elsie Ferguson scored such a hit on the stage some years ago.

Louise Fazenda, who left Warners only a few weeks ago to free lance, has been signed to play the mu[illegible] one of the important roles. Well, Louise will do right by it. Give her comedy and she is right in her element.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Billy Joy cooking chicken in Tom Mix's spacious kitchen. Beatrice Joy explaining that she is to play the gypsy and not the mother role in the movie version of "The Squall." Norma Talmadge sitting on the steps, listening to the radio account of the Heeney-Tunney fight. The moon shining over the terrace on the Tom Mix estate. Hollywood jazz hounds getting ready to attend the opening of the Plantation, purchased by Roscoe Arbuckle.

That's all today; see you tomorrow!

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

TODAY was Saturday, and it had rained a little in the night, and I guess the ground was hot from the sunshine yesterday, so that the air seemed to be full of steam, and the sweat was running down me before I had let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and had got my short britches on and went down to get the pail and milk the dummed brutes.

When I had got them milked and had fed my face and went out to take the cows to the pasture the girls were there, and Nibs said to them for cat's sake to chase themselves, and Funkie said she would like to know why she had got to chase herself. She said this is a free country and she would go where she wanted and only obey us long as she pleased and some [illegible] when she got ready and not much and what was he going to do about it.
